That Ugly Word 'Dole.'
Bad News That Is Good.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

NEWS FROM SPAIN takes you back to Henry VIII of England and his many wives. Rome refused him a divorce that he particularly wanted and Henry seized the great wealth of the church and the religious orders in England, starting a new church, the Episcopalian, and persuading Charles V to protect Luther, to spite the Pope.

SPAIN'S CONSTITUTIONAL committee asks Parliament to expel all members of religious orders from Spain and seize their wealth. Increasing through the centuries, with gifts and legacies from the faithful, that wealth is great, sufficient to solve the financial problems of Spain.

Largely in real estate, the property could not be taken out of Spain.

THIS NEWS, combined with recent events in Mexico and Italy, may cause the church to consider as its principal investment property other than real estate.

Freedom from taxation and assessments makes land an ideal investment for all religions, but only in countries where property rights are respected.

Spain's constitutional committee wishes a constitutional definition of Spain as "democratic republic." It is one thing to choose a definition, another to make it real.

OUR ENERGETIC Russian friends, working and producing with marvelous energy born of revolutionary enthusiasm, everything from tractors to candy, sell gasoline in South America at 11 cents a gallon and lumber at $20 a thousand feet.

OUR GOVERNMENT might wake up and get rid of a antediluvian Sherman act nuisance, with its silly insistence on full competition.

Russia has only ONE lumber, candy, sugar, gasoline, machinery or other concern, and it's always THE RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT.

WITH DETERDING of the Dutch-British Shell Company taking the oil business away from our old-fashioned oil gentlemen here and Russia taking the foreign gasoline business, where shall we land? Must we wait, like little Miss Netticoat, in her white petticoat, until the Russian spider sits down beside us, and scares us away from world markets?

SOFT COAL MEN want the federal government to control their business, making them a public utility, that government as with railroads, may compel the public to pay a profitable price.

And the coal men advance an ingenious idea. They would have the government buy from them surplus or unprofitable coal mines and shut them down.

A few stores, hotels, apartment houses, office buildings and even newspapers would like to make the same arrangement.

PRESIDENT HOOVER wants to keep away from that ugly word "dole" and the public approves. The word is almost as disagreeable to the unemployed as to those that would be taxed to supply the dole money.

But, seven millions are idle, and the number will increase, unless industrial business conditions change, and there are two words more unpleasant than "dole." One is "riot" and the other is one not even pronounced in America, because it makes us so jumpy.

IF THE GOVERNMENT means to spend $16 a week, to help a mother feed three to five children, better give it to the mother direct. A million men that went to France can tell the President what part of the $16 the mother would get after deducting "charity overhead."

And, anyhow, the Red Cross, asked to help the hungry children of miners, said distinctly that feeding American children is not its business. That business is attending to "acts of God."

And you surely can't call "act of God," the speculating, reckless over-production and overbuying that brought on our depression. You may call it "war result," but God did not start the war.

THERE COMES from the fashionable gambling resorts in France "bad news" that is good news. The gambling casinos are near bankruptcy, because American fools that usually enrich them are at home, worrying, and the money that Russian nobles once squandered in every European gambling hell is now building tractors and planting co-operative farms, in Russia.

DR. FRANCE, once Senator from Maryland, says he will run for the presidential nomination against Hoover, will win, and promises "not to try to lead the Republican party."

That is getting off with the wrong foot. What the people want is some one that WILL lead. Fabre's ring of caterpillars crawling round and round the top of a stone vase, getting nowhere, because the way home had been cut off, is not the American idea of leadership.

International News Service.

POINT BARROW, Alaska, Aug. 8.—Col. and Mrs. Charles A. Lindberg, after being lost in a fog, arrived here from Aklavik, Northwest Territory, at 2 a. m. (Pacific standard time) today.

Arrival of the Tokio-bound fliers was heralded in a message sent by Mrs. Lindbergh on the radio of the Lindbergh amphibian plane.

She said they had lost their bearings in a fog during the 536-mile journey from Aklavik.

Despite the fact that they were lost, the Colonel and his wife made comparatively good time on their hop. Leaving Aklavik at 9:35 o'clock (Pacific standard time) last night, they flashed along the Alaska shoreline to this point in approximately 4 hours and 25 minutes.

From here they will proceed to Nome, the "hopping-off place" for Siberia and Japan.

World Flieds Held In Japan Inquiry

TOKIO, Aug. 8.—(INS)—Japanese police continued today to hold the monoplane of Hugh Herndon and Clyde Pangborn and to question the American fliers concerning their violation of espionage laws by flying over fortified positions.

The "round-the-world" fliers, who came to Tokio after giving up their attempt to beat the record of Post and Gatty, were therefore unable to begin overhauling the Miss Veedol for a nonstop flight from this city to Seattle.

'Other Woman'

MARLENE DIETRICH

SIREN BRANDED 'OTHER WOMAN'

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 8.—(INS)—Marlene Dietrich, of the films, had today been named as "the other woman" in difficulties involving her director, Joseph von Sternberg, and his ex-wife.

In a special session of the Domestic Relations Court, it was stated late yesterday that Mrs. Von Sternberg has filed two damage suits against Miss Dietrich in New York.

It was said that Mrs. Von Sternberg demands $500,000 of the German actress for alienation of affections and $100,000 for libel.

In the libel suit Mrs. Von Sternberg charged Miss Dietrich with saying Von Sternberg was going to divorce his wife, that she was an undutiful wife, that she neglected her marital obligations and fomented a move to boycott Miss Dietrich in the United States.

From the stand Mrs. Von Sternberg yesterday said:

"She also charged clothing to his accounts, and he furnished an apartment for her. He would never let me charge clothing to his accounts."

BABCOCK SEES VOTE MACHINE FAILURE

County to Get but 150 Instead of 1,100 by Time Limit, Commissioner Wires

The Poole Engineering and Machine Company will not be able to deliver to Allegheny County more than 150 voting machines by next Saturday, when the time limit for the 1,100 which were to be used in the fall elections expires, according to County Commissioner E. V. Babcock.

Babcock has been in Baltimore where the Poole factory is located, makin' a survey of the delivery prospects. His information revealed today was wired to his colleague, County Commissioner Joseph G. Armstrong, last night.

The Poole company has posted bond of $200,000 to guarantee delivery of the 1,100 machines by August 15. The Commissioners recently held up a request from the company for $10,000 as part payment for the first 10 machines, delivered last month. The reason given was the company's tardiness in making deliveries.

BABCOCK REPORTS

Babcock wired:

"Have been looking over voting machines at Poole plant. They have 485 men working in three shifts. They promised to

MRS. JOHN MEDER

Mrs. Meder, whose son, Sylvester, 19, 135 St. Joseph street, South Side, lost his life today defending a silk handkerchief, gift of his brother, lay teacher in Hawaii, in a fight with one man of a crowd seeking to take the bauble.

BOY, 19, KILLED IN STREET FIGHT

Taunted by several young men about a silk handkerchief he wore in his coat, Sylvester Meder, 19, of 135 St. Joseph street, South Side, early today fought with one of the men who attempted to snatch the handkerchief and was fatally injured. Homicide detectives are holding Fred Brudin, 28, of 417 Calhoun avenue, Carrick, who they say, beat Meder.

Detectives said Meder's skull was fractured and his face showed severe bruises. He was dead when takn to the South Side Hospital by Charles Tyhurst, 20, of 982 Warrington avenue, and Caspar Stark, of 912 Climax street.

The handkerchief which caused the fatal battle, was a gift from a brother of Meder, who is a lay brother and a teacher in Honolulu. Meder's parents said today he prized the handkerchief highly and had refused to give it up.

According to Detectives Frank Dodson and Thomas Mulvihill, the fight occurred at 3 a. m. in St. Joseph's street.

The youth was the breadwinner for his father, John Meder, bedridden for two years, his mother and a younger brother.

His mother said:

"He was a good boy and never gave us any trouble."

Brudin was turned over to the Coroner in Central Police Court today.

OUST CRIMINAL ALIENS, URGES WICKERSHAM

Deportation Only Way to Fight Foreign Gangsters, Commission Tells Hoover

By WILLIAM P. FLYTHE
Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—All criminal aliens should be summarily deported, the Wickersham Commission on Law Observance and Enforcement declared in a special report to President Hoover today.

It is only in this way, the commission stated, that the government can deal with lawlessness from this type in gangland, in the drug traffic and in the numerous beer and liquor feuds. The report said:

"A vigorous enforcement of the deportation laws is necessary both to carry out our immigration policy and to rid the country of undesirable residents unlawfully here."

NEED OF DEPORTATION

The Commission, in urging expulsion of undesirables, said:

"It is a necessary attribute of sovereignty that a country should have the right to expel residents who are not citizens and who are members of the criminal or other undesirable classes. The necessity for the practical application of this right is obvious. The prevalence of crime and the disregard of law in this country is one of the reasons for the creation of the commission.

"There are serious problems enough in our own body of citizens both with respect to disregard for law and with respect to the general social organization; it is patent that these problems shouuld not be aggravated by the continued residence in our midst of such aliens as are members of classes dangerous to the community."

MERCY RECOMMENDED

The report, however, was tempered with a recommendation for

BLACK HAND WAR SEEN IN AMBUSH KILLINGS

County Employe, Ex-Convict In Slaying, and Sewickley Heights Gardener Victims

Gangland guns barked twice in widely separated sections of Allegheny County early today and left two men dead.

Both murders are attributed by police to a renewal of activities of the Blackhand society.

"In one, an ex-convict, Joe Lentine, 36, of 625 Forward avenue, was shot to death in Four-Mile Run Hollow, below the Greenfield Avenue Bridge. Lentine had been shot twice with a sawed-off shotgun apparently fired at close range.

SHOT 12 TIMES

Tom Sacco, 42, an Italian gardener, employed on one of the exclusive Sewickley Heights estates, was the other victim. Sacco's body was found pierced by 12 bullets in the Sewickley Cemetery in Sewickley Heights, by Mike Pallone, a grave digger.

County Detectives W. O. Alexander and Philip Goldberg said Sacco expected an attack upon his life. They found two red flannel-wrapped packages in his pockets, one containing a loaded 32-caliber revolver and the other an extra round of ammunition.

Sacco was the father of seven children and lived on Dixon road, Sewickley. He was employed on the J. Stewart Brown estate.

DISCOVERS BODY

Pallone told detectives that Sacco, en route to work, frequently used a path through the cemetery. He said he did not see him this morning, but thought nothing of it. Pallone said he started for a bottle of water at 9:15 and found the body about 100 feet from a grove of trees.

Lentine's body was found 600 yards from his home, almost hidden by tall grass and weeds, by Wilbert Logan, Negro, of 757 Forward avenue. Logan told police he heard the shots, but did not pay any attention to them. As he started to leave his home he said he saw the body and called police.

Ralph Amity, a neighbor, with whom Lentine is said to have quarrelled Sunday, was arrested by Lieut. Frank Dodson, of the homicide detectives, and taken to Oakland Police Station for questioning. Amity's son, George, is Firemen of Fallston, Beaver County, closed Fallston Hill, on Pennsylvania State Highway Route No. 51, this morning, on order of Fallston Council, because of alleged dangerous conditions. Traffic was being rerouted by way of New Brighton and Beaver Falls.

"Thirty days ago we notified the State Highway Department to do something to remedy dangerous traffic conditions, but nothing was done. Yesterday we conferred with Pittsburgh engineers of the highway department and with the Beaver County Commissioners, but no agreement could be reached, so we ordered the firemen out to close the hill this morning."

TAX BOOKS SHUT TO VOTE LIST INQUIRY

Board Denies Registration Commissioners Access to Records; Laws Scanned

The County Tax Board has refused Registration Commissioners access to the tax books and records that the latter requested to continue their investigation of voters' lists that are suspected of being padded.

The Commissioners' solicitor, Gen. Churchill Mellard, today to lookers up ... as to see if the tax board can be forced to allow the Commissioners' investigators to examine the records.

2 ARRESTS MADE

The Commissioners recently had two men arrested for making false affidavits to get names other than their own on the assessors' books so that people could illegally register and vote under fictitious names.

Subordinate assessors are required to enroll all voters they find in the house-to-house canvass. That record is turned into the central office where clerks transcribe the names into books to be used by the County Treasurer in issuing tax receipts for voting purposes.

If a voter finds he has not been recorded on the house-to-house canvass he may, under the law, appear in the assessors' general office and be enrolled after making affidavit as to his identity.

RECENT RULING

Voters enrolled by affidavits are recorded in extra books which later are submitted to the county treasurer for the issuance of receipts upon payment of taxes.

During the 1929 mayoralty campaign the legality of the extra books was attacked and the courts ordered all names recorded thereon stricken from the voters' lists thereby disfranchising thousands of citizens.

The extra books now are legal under an act of the 1931 Legislature.

Last Tuesday the registration commissioners, after having the two men arrested on the false affidavit charge, asked the tax board for access to the extra books and supporting affidavits so that any suspicious names could be investigated.

INVESTIGATION BALKED

The commissioners explained that their clerks and investigators would do the checking of the assessors' books and other records at night so as not to interfere with office routine.

George J. Schad, chairman of the tax board, replied yesterday that the registration commissioners cannot have the assessors' records until September 2, one day before the first registration day. There would not be time enough then for an investigation, according to John K. Morrow, chairman of the registration commission.

Shirley, who when seized and carried off in an auto called to playmates to "get the license number." They did and counts detectives found the child in Pittsburgh with her father, Jack Arnsey, 10 Oak street, Mt. Lebanon, now held for auto stealing. The child has been returned to her mother, 1312 Wade street, Aliquippa.

GIRL RETURNED TO MOTHER

Thanks to the quick wit of Shirley Ann Schroyer, 6, she was reunited to her mother today after an absence of five days.

Shirley was playing on the street near the home of her mother, Mrs. Geraldine Schroyer, 22, of 1312 Wade street, Aliquippa, when a man approached in an automobile and pulled her into the car.

As she was being carried off, Shirley called to playmates:

"Get the license number."

The children did so, with the result county detectives say that they learned the car had been driven by the child's father, Jack Arnsey, 10 Oak street, Mt. Lebanon, divorced by the little girl's mother four years ago.

The father had taken the child to a rooming house at 225 East General Robinson street. Remembering her mother's telephone, Shirley had a woman in the rooming house notify her mother, who then was able to reclaim her daughter, legally awarded to her by the courts at the time of the divorce.

Mt. Lebanon residents were aroused from their beds early today by gunfire as police stopped a running pistol battle with three young men through the streets and along Bower Hill road to Bridgeville, where the men plunged through Chartiers Creek and escaped.

Officer Hasley

The chase started, police say, when Motorcycle Officer Robert Hasley noticed the men parked near the Elm drug store as he was patroling his beat in Cochran road. When the trio saw the officer they are alleged to have fled in their machine. Four shots were fired at the officer as he pursued them along Cochran and Bower Hill roads. He returned their fire.

Near Sunset Cabins, a barbecue, the trio doused lights on their machine and turned off the highway onto a dirt road. Pursued by the officer, they drove across a field and plunged through Chartiers Creek, into which the motorcycle could not follow.

The men were encountered a second time by Officer Albert Grave as he was returning from Bridgeville. Passing him at high speed, police say, they again doused lights on their machine and turned off the highway.

being sought along with Carmen Cesta, with whom Lentine is reported to have been walking this morning.

FORMER CONVICT

Lentine was employed at one of the Allegheny County Road Department's asphalt plants, a position he had held two days. He had been out of work several months.

He was recently released from Western Penitentiary after having served a four-year sentence on a manslaughter charge in connection with the slaying of Alexander De Rosa, 35, at 701 Forward avenue, about five years ago. De Rosa was shot through the mouth while talking with Joseph Chiodo. Lentine was arrested some time later and released when De Rosa was discharged from Homeopathic Hospital, apparently recovered. De Rosa collapsed suddenly a few weeks later and died before medical aid could be summoned. Lentine was rearrested.

WITNESS SLAIN

Before Lentine was brought to trial, Frank Patsio, 33, of 753 Navlor street, a witness in the De Rosa shooting, was shot to death from ambush. Both murders were attributed to the Mafia and efforts were made to identify Lentine as a killer, but this never was established.

Mrs. Mary Lentine, 36, wife of the dead man, told police she had a premonition of the slaying. She said:

"Several men in the neighborhood did not like my husband and some had made threats to kill him. I was worried, but Joe wouldn't pay any attention to me.

"This morning I followed him part of the way. He turned and told me to go on back home; that there was nothing to worry about. At the bend in the street I waited until he was out of sight."

Lentine's two children, Frank, 11, and Helen, 6, slept unaware of the tragedy.

BOY PLANS VENGEANCE

When members of the Sacco family were notified of the death of their father, one of the sons, aged about 12, shouted:

"Who did this thing to my father. I'll get my gun."

Dashing into the basement, the youngster appeared a few minutes later with something concealed under his shirt and ran from the house.

have 40 more machines in Pittsburgh by Tuesday. Poole Engineering and Machine Company will be unable to complete contract by the 15th.

"Have arranged with S. Procter Brady, president, to appear before the board of commissioners next Tuesday when he will state exactly what can be expected from now on. It looks to me as though they can ship a minimum of 15 per day."

The county election bureau reported the receipt yesterday of 10 machines, bringing the total delivered to date to 80. Bureau estimates a total of 90 additional machines, to the maximum that can be shipped before the fifteenth, with a question as to the number that will arrive in time before that date.

CONDITIONING TIME NEEDED

The election bureau has been demonstrating the machines on hand at points in the city and county and what there are enough machines for the demonstration the bureau needs considerable time to condition the ones that will be used at the 1932 polling places in the county.

To guarantee Jess Gerth a chance to vote in the event the voting machines are not here for the primary election, the Commissioners have ordered the printing of the old-style paper ballots.

Washington Asks Vote Machine Bids

WASHINGTON, Pa., Aug. 8.—Washington County Commissioners have interpreted Controller Guy Woodward's advertising for bids for 25 voting machines to be delivered at least 30 days before the November election at such points in the county as the Commissioners may designate.

Youth Serving Life Term In Slaying, Held Sane

A lunacy commission today announced that in its opinion Alvin Hess, 19, of Homestead, who has served three years of a life sentence in Western Penitentiary for the killing of an unidentified man near Browns Bridge September 2, 1927, is sane.

The commission, composed of Dr. E. E. Mayer and C. H. Henninger, made their examination after Dr. John Priestes, resident physician of the penitentiary, had informed Judge James H. Gray that he believed young Hess insane.

Dr. Mayer and Henninger recommended that the youth be examined again if he continues to show the symptoms which alarmed Dr. Priestes.

On trial, Hess admitted beating the unidentified man to death and robbing him of $3.75. His defense at that time was based on alleged insanity.

EIGHTIETH SET FOR PARADE

Pittsburgh and Allegheny County pays homage today to its war mothers in a parade climaxing the twelfth annual reunion of the 80th Division Veterans' Association, which ends a four-day session here tomorrow.

It is the first demonstration of the kind ever held and representatives of practically every patriotic and veterans' organization in the county are participating. There will be veterans of the Civil War, Spanish-American War and the World War in the line of march, scheduled to start at 2 o'clock.

There will be four divisions, each headed by a marshal, as follows: Judge D. Paulson Foster, first; Col. Samuel J. Taylor, second; Capt. Robert G. Woodside, third, and Capt. William Maisch, fourth.

AUTOS FOR FEEBLE

Mothers and veterans too feeble to march are to be transported over the route of the parade in automobiles with drum and bugle corps, bands and various other veterans' organizations on foot in the procession. The mothers escorted by grizzled veterans of the Spanish and the World wars will make up the first division.

Forming in Dinwiddie street at 1:15 p. m., the vanguard of the parade will march down Fifth avenue with the other divisions falling in behind to proceed down Fifth avenue to Liberty avenue to Tenth street where the parade will disband in the vicinity of the Fort Pitt Hotel, headquarters of the reunion.

Election of Officers To Be Final Business

Election of officers and adoption of resolutions was scheduled as the final business today.

There is a warm fight in selection of the national commander and next year's reunion city. Pennsylvania has claimed the last four national commanders and the last four reunions.

West Virginia and Virginia both are bidding strong for next year's gathering and the national commandership.

VIRGINIAN LIKELY CHOICE

Pennsylvania's candidate this year is Rodney Bonsall of Philadelphia, defeated last year by Jerry J. Madden, of Pittsburgh. Maj. Harry Holtz, the A. E. F.'s youngest major and a native of Virginia, is considered the most likely choice of the reunion and the choice of next year's reunion city apparently lies between Conneaut Lake, Pa., Harrisonburg and Alexandria, Va.

Ball, Sightseeing, Fireworks Entertain

The veterans turned out en masse last night to the annual military ball given under the auspices of Pennsylvania Auxiliary No. 1, 80th Division Veterans' Association and the Gen. Lloyd M. Brett Post. The afternoon was devoted to sightseeing trips around the city, a luncheon for the women and a boatride down the Ohio. Reports of committees were held over until today.

PLANE SHOWS FIREWORKS

An aerial display was put on over the city last night when an airplane from Bettis Field flew over the downtown section with lights and fireworks attached to its wingtips. The stunt was to be repeated again tonight.

Maj. Hal Bailey, on leave from active duty with the air squadron at Langley Field, is scheduled to lead an aerial squadron of Army bombing planes over the city during the parade today. He was to have arrived at Bettis Field last night, but was reported delayed until today.

A military mass will be held at St. Patrick's Church, Seventeenth street, tomorrow with memorial services later in the day at the Fort Pitt Hotel, ringing down the curtain on the four-day reunion. The Rev. Father Edward Wallace, division chaplain, will officiate at both services.

Holdup and Murder Suspects Released

Two Negro suspects in the murder of Harry Siegel, assistant manager of the Walgreen drug store, at Wood street and Sixth avenue, who was shot by a thug in a holdup early Tuesday, will be released today, detectives said.

The two, Walter R. Bailey, 22, of 1218 Wylie avenue, and Ernest Hutchinson, 35, of 504 Junilla street, are discharged employes of the drug store. Witnesses failed to identify them.

COLLISION KILLS BOY, 5 HURT

A boy was killed and five persons injured when a truck and an automobile collided at Franklin avenue and West street, Wilkinsburg, late yesterday. Two of the injured were pedestrians.

The boy, Neal MacNicol, 11, of 1025 Taylor way, Wilkinsburg, was killed when thrown from the truck in which he was riding.

Joseph Lapaglina, 17, of 1034 Penn avenue, Wilkinsburg, driver of the truck, the two pedestrians, Margaret Bellenghi, 30, of 7611 Edgerton avenue, and Louise Sevastrello, 11, of 419 Peebles street, Wilkinsburg, and Sally DeHass, 21, and Mary F. Rough, 5, both of 405 Highland avenue, East Pittsburgh, passengers in the machine, were taken to Columbia Hospital.

H. I. Sleasman, 38, of 1613 Lyon avenue, Turtle Creek, driver of the automobile, was uninjured. He was ordered to post bond at the Coroner's office. Sleasman told police, they said, that his car swerved on the sidewalk after the crash and struck the two pedestrians.

Pittsburgher Wins Bride Day After Getting Divorce

Remarried two days after his divorce, according to records, Alfred W. Barrett, of the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, vice president of the Miller Printing Machine Company, and of the Pittsburgh Gray Iron Foundry Company, was honeymooning today with his bride, who was Mrs. Mary M. Hill, daughter of Archibald Mackrell, South Evaline street.

Barrett was granted a divorce from Grace Ellen Barrett, former Chicago society girl, by Judge Sylvester J. Snee, in court Tuesday, according to the record, which came to light yesterday. The decree was granted on grounds of desertion.

Barrett testified that they were married in Chicago, October 27, 1906, that she left with their three children, October 15, 1916, and returned to Chicago to be with friends.

Records at the marriage license office disclosed he had taken out a permit to wed Mary M. Hill. The two were married Thursday and departed on a honeymoon trip to Rock Lodge, the F. F. Nicola estate, near Oakland, Md.

TAXI STRIKERS STAND FIRM

The sentiment of the striking taxicab drivers is still strong against returning to work, John A. Stackhouse, local union secretary-treasurer said today following a meeting of more than 500 drivers last night in Moose Temple.

The meeting was called by Miss M. Emmelinne Pitt, federal labor conciliator.

In addition to Miss Pitt, speakers were Patrick Ward, business agent for the street car men's union; George Siebert, business agent of the Pile Drivers and Dock Builders' Union, and Peter Bollenbacher, of the State Department of Labor and Industry. Michael J. Burns, president of the union, presided.

PLAN FOR COAL PARLEY DRAWN

WHEELING, W. Va., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A plan drafted by Wheeling district bankers and civic leaders to bring about stabilization of the coal industry in the northern panhandle district of West Virginia has been sent to Washington.

Hugh D. Friel, Columbus, O., commissioner of conciliation of the United States Department of Labor, concluded an eight-day conference with bituminous coal miners and operators yesterday and left for the capital with a draft of the proposals.

J. F. Ebeling, Wheeling financier, said Friel had given the plan his approval. The proposals provide for formation of a new competitive field and establishment of a non-political tribunal having semi-dictatorial powers.

The plan was worked out primarily to regulate the field which serves the lake trade, its sponsors said, and it deals chiefly with steam coal mining in Eastern Ohio, Western Pennsylvania and a large part of West Virginia.

100,000 to Witness Launching of Navy Air Giant, Akron

AKRON, O., Aug. 6.—(AP)—This city and many thousands of visitors joined with officials of the United States Navy in the celebration here today of one of the most important events in the history of aeronautics, the launching and christening of the world's largest airship, the Akron.

The new dirigible, as long as several city blocks, and as high as a 15-story building, was to be christened this afternoon by Mrs. Herbert Hoover, wife of the President. At the same time, it was to be freed from its cradle and floated about 40 feet along the interior of the giant hangar.

A crowd of 100,000 persons was expected to attend the ceremonies at the Akron Municipal Airport. The program, similar to the launching and christening of a battleship, was to begin at 3:30 p. m., daylight saving time.

PLANES TO MANEUVER

Mrs. Hoover was to christen the ship by pulling a cord to release a flock of homing pigeons nestled in a hatch in the nose of the dirigible. A 100-piece band will play the "Star Spangled Banner" while a chorus of 500 voices will sing.

During the launching 150 Army, Navy and civilian airplanes were to maneuver over the dock.

Speakers besides Mrs. Hoover were to include Paul W. Litchfield, president of the Goodyear-Zeppelin Corporation, builders of the ship; Rear Admiral William A. Moffett, chief of the Navy Bureau of Aeronautics, and David S. Ingalls, Assistant Secretary of the Navy in charge of aeronautics.

The christening and launching will be followed by a banquet tonight for 900 persons, including Army, Navy and Marine Corps officers, aviation and technical experts, newspapermen, diplomats and other public officials.

The two councilmen are expected to discuss the improvements next week with Director Edward O. Lang of the Public Works Department.

CURRAN DEATH SUSPECTS FREE

Two men held for questioning in the murder of Morris Curran, aged beer supplies racketeer who was shot to death June 24 in front of his unfinished home at 2918 Perrysville avenue, were released on bonds after two North Side girls failed to pick them out of a "stand-up" in the detective bureau last night.

The two, Frank Abbott, 28, of 19 Lesley avenue, and Dominick Dugo, 25, of Preble avenue, were arrested after their photographs had been identified by the girls as occupants of the sedan in which the killers escaped. The girls, whose identity detectives did not divulge, scanned the faces of nine men in the "stand-up" and failed to pick out the two prisoners. Abbott and Dugo denied any connection with the slaying.

WILD RIDE ENDS WITH ARREST

The wild ride of an alleged drunken driver in a stolen automobile was brought to a halt when Motorcycle Patrolman Thomas McGuire arrested the man after a chase at Bigelow boulevard and Dettridge street.

The driver, James Crowley, 25, of 3222 Juliet street, was pronounced drunk by a city physician after his arrest, police said. Stealing the automobile of Rena J. Frew, of 588 Sixth street, Beaver, from Forbes and Boquet streets, about an hour before his arrest, Crowley, police said, raced madly up the Boulevard of the Allies, crashed into a machine at Bluff street and then increased his speed. The zig-zag driving attracted Motorcycle Patrolman McGuire, who gave chase and arrested Crowley.

NAUTILUS NEAR NORTHERN PORT

By CAPT. SIR HUBERT WILKINS

Commander of the Wilkins-Ellsworth Trans-Arctic Submarine Expedition

ABOARD SUBMARINE NAUTILUS en Route to Tromsoe, Norway, Aug. 8.—The Nautilus made good time against head winds and choppy seas yesterday and we should be in Tromsoe, first of our two refueling stops en route to the Arctic and North Pole, by Sunday morning.

We plan to remain in Tromsoe only long enough to take on the fuel, leaving for Spitsbergen Monday night.

Since we left Bergen Wednesday morning until yesterday morning we had been in sheltered waters along the Norwegian Coast. The easy sailing afforded us ample opportunity to get straightened out aboard our craft.

For eight hours yesterday we ploughed through the open Atlantic with the Nautilus rolling as usual. From now until we reach Tromsoe we will be again in sheltered waters.

RESCUED MAN IMPROVED

Dug from beneath a slide of clay yesterday in a sewer in the rear of 5232 Schenley avenue, Gennaro Manella, 42, of 7128 Upland street, today was in the West Penn Hospital, where physicians said he was little the worse for his experience.

Manella, engulfed in the slide of clay that had been removed from a manhole under construction at 2:30 p. m. yesterday, was extricated at 6:40 p. m. by a squad of firemen, policemen and workers who were led by Mike Manella, Gennaro's uncle, and the city contractor in charge of the job.

Police and Manella's fellow workers succeeded in clearing the earth from his face so that he could breathe shortly after he was caught in the slide.

Manella's most serious injury, aside from shock, was a sprained left ankle. Some time ago he was caught beneath a slide in Oakmont and was rescued only after a steam shovel was brought into service.

mercy and more humane treatment of the foreigner subject to deportation. A recommendation was made that officials instead of following the hard and fast edict of the statutes, be allowed to use discretion in the separation of families and the return of an alien to his native land.

The commission was bitterly scored what it termed the "inquisition and star chamber methods" of the Labor Department in detecting and deporting criminals and other aliens without proper hearings. It was suggested Congress create a special board or body to pass on all cases of deportation at public hearings or trials, and that the functions of the Labor Department be confined to the role of the prosecutor and detecting agency.

NINE APPROVE REPORT

The report was approved by nine of the 11 Commissioners. Col. Henry W. Anderson dissented on the ground that he believed the Labor Department to be efficiently carrying out the law. He said that the special study and report of Reuben Oppenheimer, Baltimore attorney, on which the report is based, is incomplete and he could not consider it.

Kenneth MacKintosh dissented on the ground that Oppenheimer had made a study of not a comparatively small number of cases and that he would require complete information to come to the conclusion that there had been any abuses by the administrative officials.

At the outset the commission attempted to dispel the popular idea that the alien class is the criminal class. It said:

"The current notion that the so-called foreign-born part of the population of the United States is responsible for a disproportionate part of the crime committed in the country is certainly not based upon an adequate statistical foundation.

"It is true, however, that in some of our larger cities some types of crime have appeared as a weakness of certain groups of foreign people."

The commission however failed to mention the types of crime peculiar to certain foreign groups.

INQUISITION SCORED

But whatever the nature of the alien, the commission declared the bill of rights should give them the same right to be faced by their accusers as a citizen and guarantee the same fair judicial treatment.

On the star chamber proceedings the commission said the immigration officials and patrols all of their information through anonymous letters or police. All of the questions asked are not learned, it was declared, and the alien is often ignorant of the language in which he is questioned. He is then told which questions he answered wrongly and on such grounds deportation.

Patricia Pitt's Sprightly Comment on Pittsburgh's Society Events

In Mayfair —With— Patricia Pitt

News has just reached me of a wedding taking place in the East of interest here, since the bridegroom is a Pittsburgh man, and he and his wife will live here after their honeymoon is over.

The bride is Helen Brown Avery, daughter of William H. Avery of Edgewood, R. I. and the bridegroom is Dr. Leon Hughes Hetherington, son of Mrs. Thomas A. Hetherington, of Washington, Pa.

The ceremony took place in the Cranston Street Roger Williams Baptist Church of Edgewood, R. I., August 1, at 7:30 o'clock. The Rev. Eric Lind, of Quincy, Mass., officiated, assisted by the Rev. York King.

Gowned In Satin

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore ivory satin having smart diagonal lines and a train, and a veil of rose point lace falling from a cap of lace and orange blossoms. She carried bride's roses and lilies of the valley.

Her maid of honor, her sister, Laura P. Avery, wore green chiffon and carried an arm bouquet of Talisman roses, and the bridesmaids, Kathleen Elliott, of Beaver Falls, Pa., and Esther Comegys, of Scranton, Pa., wore orchid chiffon and carried mixed garden flowers.

Dr. Thomas Hamilton Bruce, Jr., was best man, and Elliot Avery and Kleber Avery, cousins of the bride, and Dr. Gordon McCurdy and Stuart Stafford were ushers.

Reception In Home

The church was banked with palms and flowers. A reception and dinner followed in the Avery home.

After touring through Maine and Canada, Dr. and Mrs. Hetherington will live in Pittsburgh. Dr. Hetherington will be on the staff of the Tuberculosis League Hospital.

Mrs. Ray R. Hetherington, of North Lang avenue, attended the ceremony.

League for Peace Meets In Mrs. Spear's Garden

Through modern methods of transportation, through radio, telephone and telegram, the whole world today is smaller than the 13 states were when this country was founded, Mrs. Mildred Scott Olmstead, Pennsylvania executive secretary of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom, told the Pittsburgh branch at a meeting in Mrs. Nathaniel Spear's garden yesterday morning.

Mrs. Olmstead pointed out that the founders of this country had so made the laws that the military was subordinate to the civil, and that, despite the differences in nationality, religion, temperament and economics, there could be no war between the states, because they were bound together by a mutual interest.

Such a condition is possible today between the states of the world held together as they are by a universal desire for peace, Mrs. Olmstead said. It is towards that end that the League is asking for universal disarmament.

Peace Possible

Asked if she believed in the abolition of the police, Mrs. Olmstead said there is no parallel between the police and the army. The police are themselves pledged to keep the law and are expected to carry out the will of the people for laws already established, whereas an army imposes its will for conquest or punishment and is above all law. The trouble is that peace sentiment is not articulate, and it is the job of the League to make it articulate, she said, adding that the world will have either universal peace or universal war.

She told of her experiences with the League's peace caravan, which has visited 42 cities and 14 states and has been received with honor and acclaim everywhere. The petitions for total and universal disarmament, signed by 3,582 persons in the Pittsburgh district alone, were signed by governors and mayors, as well as private citizens, and will be presented with ceremony to President Hoover. They are to be sent to the disarmament conference in Geneva next year.

Tells of Caravan

Mrs. Olmstead started out with the peace caravan in California, where the temperature was 114 in the shade, in comparison with which, she said, Pittsburgh seems cool. Both Mrs. Olmstead and her husband were with the A. E. F. in France, and peace work, she said, is much more thrilling than war work.

Education Unit Plans Series of Conferences

A letter, indicative of a strong, new activity in the Allegheny County Federation of Women's Clubs, has been sent out by the chairman of the new department of education, Mrs. D. Edwin Miller. The communication, which is the first to reach the federated clubs from the new department, head states that it is the plan of the department to call a series of conferences during the year at which subjects of vital interest to patents and patrons of the schools will be discussed by recognized authorities and at which representatives of business, trade, high and aviation schools and colleges will be present to answer any questions which may be brought up.

The department is also arranging the letter states, to co-operate with the federated clubs in connection with their educational programs, providing speakers and requested materials for programs. Mrs. Miller asks that each club appoint an educational chairman who will represent her organization at the conferences of the educational committee of the federation.

Enclosed with the letter is a questionnaire asking for information on club and membership work in order that a full report may be made by Allegheny County at the State Federation convention in October.

Porto Rican Scouts Live Like 'Jibaros'

A camp which provides alligator pears for supper and gardenias for every camper's coat, does not exactly sound as if it were run in the spirit of Girl Scouting as conceived by the founder, Juliette Low. Yet there is a camp where these luxuries go hand in hand with pioneering. It is in Porto Rico, where the pears and gardenias grow.

What a camper's life is like on El Junque, highest mountain of Porto Rico, was told recently by Miss Dorothy Sullivan, director of Girl Scouting on the island, who is now in New York on her vacation.

Miss Sullivan said:

"Though our fruits and flowers may sound misleading to those who associate them with soft living, our methods of washing among other things would not seem easy even to a pioneer."

To live as the "jibaros" or mountain people do, is the aim of the Porto Rican Girl Scouts. They wash their clothes jibaro style by pounding them between rocks on the river bank. The jibaro method of broadcasting warning signals sends them scuttling from that same river, which has a nasty trick of rising seven feet in about 15 minutes.

Miss Sullivan explained:

"When it begins to rise the native whose grass hut is nearest the source, sounds a warning by blowing on a conch shell. This is passed along from hut to hut, and we get it at camp at least 10 minutes ahead of trouble?"

Camping until four years ago was an unknown amusement for Porto Rico girls. Now the taste for it is spreading rapidly. There were two Girl Scout camps this summer, and for the first time the girls did their cooking on the trail. Strange cooking it sounds to an American. They bake and boil big green bananas and even candy, some like "sweets." Their favorite drink is cocoanut milk drawn through a hole in the green fruit.

They also like one made from the guanabana, a fruit about the size of a melon, the pulpy white flesh of which they squeeze. Their favorite dish is rice with chicken, cooked slowly in an earthenware pot with pimentos, raisins and olives.

The rapid growth in the popularity of Girl Scouting in Porto Rico and the willingness of the parents to co-operate despite their prejudices was attributed by Miss Sullivan to the interest shown by Gov. and Mrs. Roosevelt in the program.

Salvation Army Takes Poor to Fresh Air Camp

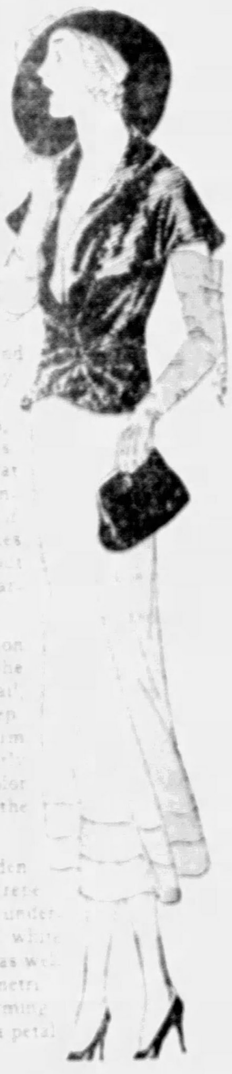
Above the heat and smoke of the city, where clean sunshine invigorates them during the day, and cool breezes lull them into sound sleep at night, more than 150 poor children, taken from the most congested districts of Allegheny County, are spending 10 days at the Salvation Army Fresh Air Camp near West View. Every 10 days during the summer a new party of 150 children takes possession of the camp. Every Monday morning street cars, especially chartered, carry the little folks through the city and up the North Side hills to the West View camp, an ideal location for a children's summer camp.

Mrs. Lieut. Col. C. B. Campbell, in charge of the camp, is assisted by an expert staff of social workers, religious teachers, recreation instructors and nurses.

The camp occupies 38 acres and includes eight cottages, four dormitories, two dining halls, a splendid swimming pool and various paraphernalia for the enjoyment and physical development of the young guests. In the evening the children are given entertainments and occasionally they furnish entertainment of their own. The mothers are permitted to accompany the smaller children.

BEAUTIFUL FUR CAPELETS FAVORED FOR LATE SUMMER

Sketched in Paris



Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—It must be summer because fur capelets are here. Already here and there one catches glimpses of little fur capelets, vests, boleros and jackets. And it says much for these little fur accessories that they fit perfectly into the sartorial scheme without any attempt to attract attention to them. There is a Victorian demureness about them that goes beautifully with the cult of feminine mode, and that of course helps much to create the right impression for such clothes, even if it is August. It is strange though how one longs for furs at the end of summer. Somehow even a tiny bit of fur seems to suggest the glamorous luxury of winter clothes, and this just at a time when one's summer clothes seem faded and almost unbearable. And so, that is why the races or any other outdoor event enables us to fare forth wearing a fur coat, even if the calendar does say that it is August. One tries to explain these things to the visiting male, but usually he cannot comprehend this example of sartorial psychology.

WE SHOW TODAY—after the explanation given above—a little coatee fur Heim wore at the races last week. The coat is of brown ocelot, supple and trim, and is sleeveless, but the deep cape-bertha reaches well down over the lower arm and exceedingly long suede gloves reach up nearly to its edge. The frock and gloves are biscuit color and the hat, purse and shoes match the tone of the fur. A neat color scheme.

The under blouse with two-thirds length sleeves is of white crepe and the draped fronts and sleeve cape, as well as the long skirt, are of the print, in a geometrical, irregular design. The deep flounce forming the skirt is shaped in circular godets with a petal edge and set on to a close hip yoke.

A description of the young woman, given by her father, T. P. Sharpnack of Lock No. 4 near Charleroi, pictures her as slender, tall, nearly 5 feet 10, weight about 130 pounds, with light brown hair. She was wearing a flowered chiffon dress. Her father said she told a friend she was leaving nursing to start out anew.

SEEK THE BEST

Paramount announces the purchase of Rachel Crothers' comedy, "As Husbands Go." This was named by Burns Mantle as one of the 10 best plays of the 1930-1931 season. A check-up reveals that five of Mr. Mantle's selections already have been grabbed up by the movie producers. Paramount also owns Philip Barry's "Tomorrow And Tomorrow." Universal has Moss Hart's and George S. Kaufman's "Once In A Lifetime." Warners have completed Lenore Weltzenkorn's "Five-Star Final" and F. P. G. M. has film rights to Vicki Baum's "Grand Hotel."

There remain Maxwell Anderson's historical drama "Elizabeth the Queen," Lynn Riggs' "Green Grow the Lilacs," Susan Glaspell's "Alison's House," the Pulitzer selection for the year, William Bolitho's "Overture," and Rudolph Besier's "The Barretts of Wimpole Street."

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., Aug. 8.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

My wife and daughter just off the boat from Honolulu with a ukulele under one arm and a surf board under the other. They claim it's a great vacation spot. They visited some of the big cattle ranches. That and that hula stuff would hit me better than trying to stand on my head on a board. Say, my old friend, Jim Reed, of Missouri (and Jim generally knows what he is talking about) says the government is in the bootlegging business. Lord, as far behind as the Treasury is now they got to get into something that pays. Our governor of California wants everybody to take a six-day vacation. That wont affect over 10 per cent of our people.

Yours, WILL.

On the stage, Bernie Mayerson and the Chester Hale girls [illegible] chance to shine and to charm in a pleasing ballet, the story of which covers several scenes.

Dick Leibert takes the [illegible] around the world in the air as part of his organ-ing and what-not-ing.

The screen also has the Sun-Telegraph Globe Trotter, describing various news incidents as it strayed elsewhere on this page.

Your Uncle Sam Now Dabbles in Wine Business

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

Jim Reed of Missouri claims the government is a bootlegger.

That's the kind of news—good, bad or new.

Washington loaned millions to California grape [illegible] who sell 50,000 carloads of wine [illegible] to the East.

Mabel Willebrandt is in the hands racket. She realized that enforcement is only possible during strange interludes. So she followed the advice of that famous old politician who said:

"If you can't beat 'em, jine 'em."

Mabel joined 'em. Jim Reed tells you all about it in a magazine article. Of course the governmental bootlegging hasn't reached the stage where you can go up the White House and ask for Herbie.

There is nothing illegal about two California states dumping them into the bathtub adding water, sugar and smacking them with a baseball bat. You are simply allowing nature to take its course with a little prompting from the wings.

As an ex-public servant, Jim Reed can now tell you things that he couldn't when he was under oath to uphold the dignity and prestige of the U. S. in every place except the Senate cloakroom.

Dear W. The reason for all the wild reports about their "crashes" is that Lindy won't radio his whereabouts, even when he lands safely at his destination. . . . The only reason any of us know that the plane lands at all, is that the various news services go to [illegible]

Marie Jap appears in "Revue Moderne," stage presentation showing in the Penn.

Variety phoned in a similie. Silly as neat as a package from the 5 and 10. . . . Nanette Guilford, of the Metropolitan Opera, shook off 27 pounds in 17 days by eating only oranges and milk. . . . Did you know that a dry cocktail is one with no sweetening in it?

The literati will leap all over you, some of these days, if you keep begging for a wallop with such a bone as that one last week. . . . I mean when you [illegible] the line in that poem, titled "The Trib was from Hamlet, Shakespeare [illegible] that word 10 times but never in Hamlet. If anybody does sock you for it just say you knew it all the time but you did it to see if any of them were reading you. . . . Lou Meltzer railed: "Says that playing Broadway is like playing the races—only on Broadway the odds always are greater." . . . My favorite line about Broadway still remains: "Where they shake your hand one minute and then they shake their heads." . . . Ain't it so?

In a speakeasy where my gentleman friend took me last night he gave the barkeep the recipe for a drink that contained absinthe. . . . The barkeep was very sorry but he shuddered all over and said he no could do. "Why no absinthe?" asked my companion and the reply was: "Yeah, it's against the law, the Harrison Law you know." The editor of a popular detective story magazine rejects all manuscripts in which the cop is a hero-detective, on the ground that readers do not want a cop for a hero. . . . And the reason you can see Charlotte Temple's gravestone in Trinity Churchyard, although she never lived, is that she was an "imaginary character" in Mrs. Rowson's novel, "Charlotte Temple," and that in 1840 a sentimental stone-cutter carved her name upon a slab. . . . Plays, Players and By-Play

Hearst News Feature Is Remorse

THE GLOBE TROTTER

Featured in sight and sound in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News showing in the Penn and other theaters is the confession of Elton Wing of having taken part with Gordon F. Hamby in the holding up of the East Brooklyn Savings Bank 13 years ago during the course of which two persons were killed. Hamby paid the supreme penalty for his part in the crime. Wing has been charged with first degree murder. The confession was made before the Hearst Metrotone News camera as an aid to the cause of justice and was arranged by William F. X. Geoghan, district attorney of Brooklyn, who decided upon the use of this form of confession to bring home to the youth of America the lesson that crime does not pay.

Wing was only 17 years old when he participated in the robbery. He tells in detail how it was carried out and how he wandered around always haunted, living in virtual isolation, always aware that he was being hunted and always with the fear in his heart that some day he too would pay the penalty for his share in the crime.

The friendly feeling that the people of Germany hold for Premier Ramsay MacDonald of Great Britain is shown by the remarkable reception accorded the British statesman during his visit to Berlin for the debt conference. A vast crowd assembles as MacDonald leaves the conference room and cheers him to the echo.

New records are made by outboard motor racers at Bay City, Mich., and graphically described by the Globe Trotter when a pace of 53 miles an hour is set. A sensational spill marks the motor classic.

Girl jockeys give race fans a thrill when they ride at Agua Caliente. The race is hard fought from start to finish and Babe De Forest brings her hoss home to winn the LaJolla Town Plate by a beaded eyelash!

The progress that gliding has made as a national sport is vividly illustrated in pictures of a tournament held at Elmira, N. Y., one glider setting a record of 15 miles in the air.

Oldtimers come into their own at a convention of pioneer settlers in Chicago. Enlivened by a little German band, men and women indulge in dances of a bygone day.

Nan Halperin Is Stanley Feature

By FRANK T. SMITH

The Stanley this week has Nan Halperin, radio and stage favorite, in a personal appearance, and Constance Bennett, in "The Common Law," on the screen. It is a bill good enough to whet anybody's appetite for light entertainment in these good old August days, and it seemed a goodly portion of Pittsburgh's sweltering population turned out for the first shows yesterday.

The stage show, guided by Dick Powell, rolled along at a fast and smooth pace with the Merril Abbott Steppers (boys and girls) forming a gorgeous background for a stage presentation which may be classed, on the whole, as satisfying the most fastidious.

STEPPERS HELP BILL

Of course any bill with Nan Halperin as its feature, would do just this very thing, as far as her hundreds of admirers are concerned. But she was well and generously aided and abetted by the Rio Brothers, a fast stepping trio of tap dancers; the Four Mullen Sisters, beautiful songsters; petite Ruth Petty, who sings those numbers we're all so fond of, and Robert Montgomery, whose sensational hit at the Enright with Cab Calloway, the Harlem "hot spot" band leader, is a matter of history.

One more thing before we step into the review of the screen attraction. The news reel presentation is featured by the screening of the funeral of the 5-year-old New York youngster so ruthlessly shot down by gangsters last week. It is drama—pathos. It strips gangland of any fancied romance and lays it before you in its hideousness.

ARTY ATMOSPHERE

Constance Bennett, in "The Common Law," has a story of an artist (Joel McCrea) and his unconventional model, who, of course, is the gorgeous Connie. It's heralded in the ads as a story of a gal who didn't care what people thought, until, of course, the supreme moment. Lew Cody supports Connie and Joel in an admirable fashion. But Cody is always good.

Miss Bennett's performance in this romance, laid in the artist colony of Paris and in a fashionable section of New York, doesn't equal her portrayal in "Common Clay." On the other hand the "stuff" that made her great in "Common Clay" isn't present in "The Common Law." Yet it is worth the seeing.

Rodeo Show Ends Today In Kennywood

The Compton-Hughes Wild West Rodeo in Kennywood Park will close its engagement with afternoon and evening performances today. The double high dive in the afternoon and a double fire dive at night will be the new free outdoor attraction opening Monday. Beginning Monday, Bill Hollins will bring his Serenaders to the dance pavilion for a week. Danny Nirella and his band will be at the park tomorrow for afternoon and evening concerts.

All In A Day

By Mark Hellinger

"IT HAPPENED Mark, about five years ago," writes Patricia Kelly, "and it you'd like the proof, I still have the clippings in my files. Suppose, however, that you take my word for it. You've taken the word of so many others that I might as well be on the list too.

"The story concerns Spike and, while it didn't happen in New York, it wasn't very far from the big town. Spike was—and still is, I guess—a character. His weakness was flashy clothes, and the more colors he could drape around him, the happier he was. His plaid suits would have made a Scotchman bow his head in shame and his neckties would undoubtedly have caused consternation in a gypsy camp. All of which was exactly the effect that Spike wanted to create.

Our subject was a gangster, which seems to be the main subject of the present day. Spike lived for his shopping and he always visited the stores by his lonesome. He loved to walk into stores and spend hours at the counters without feeling that his boots actually were getting restless and suspicious enough to draw at the first customer who stood too close beside him.

Well to make a long story a little longer, Spike was about to entrain for Saratoga one season for a session with the ponies. On the morning of his departure he went on one of his customary shopping tours. He stood on a corner and purchased a paper. A headline met his eye.

City To Clean Up, it read. O'Donnell, Head of Detectives, To Round Up All Well Known Gunmen.

Spike laughed. This meant very little to him. He would be Saratoga-bound before anybody so much as noticed him. If his bodyguard was along there was a chance he might be nabbed. Since he was alone, however, there was nothing to fear.

The gangster stepped into a store and treated himself in beautiful shape. He bought two dozen ties, as many handkerchiefs and a dozen sets of underwear. Before he was finished, he had a bundle that contained every color of the rainbow, and just a few more for good measure. His package all neatly wrapped, he whistled merrily as he walked from the store.

So O'Donnell is on the loose again, he mused. Well, this time I'll bet that mug won't be able to drag me downtown. I'm tired of this phoney business of his.

And after all I did for that guy, too! Nobody would ever believe he was once a pal of mine. Oh well, all rogs are rats. But I'm glad this is once I won't have to hold my mug up and be photographed by a lot of picture chasers!"

Two husky gentlemen suddenly stepped beside him. Each one grabbed an arm.

"From headquarters, Spike," they told him. "You're coming with us."

Spike protested.

"What's the big idea," he asked. "What have I done? Why don't you let me—"

They didn't even let him finish his sentence. They pushed him into a machine and whisked him to headquarters. When they brought him in, O'Donnell was talking to a group of newspapermen who stood around him.

"Told you boys that I'd have most of those bums down here before 24 hours," he asserted. "When O'Donnell tells you something, he always keeps his word."

He turned. And he grinned when he saw Spike.

"Well, well," he cried, "if it isn't my old pal Spike. I haven't seen you in a long time. Maybe you'd like to give the boys a story."

Without waiting for an answer, he spoke again to the reporters.

"Spike is just one of the rats," he announced. He knows nothing about anything except guns and fancy colors. It might interest you boys to learn that he and I used to play together when we were kids. But he went one way and I the other. Now I'm what I am—and look at him."

The gangster narrowed his eyes.

"As long as Mr. O'Donnell feels like talking," he said, "I might as well do a little talking on my own account. Ask him about the time he killed Frankie Milton in Cincinnati 14 years ago."

O'Donnell leaped forward. But Spike kept talking.

"Look it up, boys," he continued rapidly. "I helped him keep under cover. I helped him change his name and watched him become a cop. He's talking about stories, boys. Get that one from him."

Little use telling you, Mark, about the beating that Spike received a few minutes later. It didn't do Spike any good—but it didn't do O'Donnell any good either. There was an investigation of Spike's charges within the next few days. After the investigation O'Donnell went on trial. And the court session ended with the detective getting 20 years in one of the prettiest jails you ever saw.

"I told you Spike was a character. I wasn't kidding. He followed the trial with avid interest. And when it was all over, he had formed a very definite philosophy.

"'Served him right,' he told a friend. 'Things have come to a nice state when a fellow can't even buy a pair of sox and some neckties.'"

* * *

THE BOYS were sitting in Moore's restaurant the other night and discussing the staggering cost of owning a large yacht. Billy Rose, the enterprising producer, was reminded of the young man who once approached J. P. Morgan with an eager light in his eyes.

Mr. Morgan," he cried, "I've just come into some money. How much does it cost to own a yacht?"

"If you ask," he murmured, "you can't afford it."

* * *

AT THE same table, Sam H. Harris unfolded one of his favorite stories. It had to do with Jim Thornton, the old-time monologist who has been on the vaudeville stage for more than 50 years. Jim never cared much about the sticks and he hated to be away from Broadway. Necessity, however, sometimes compelled him to play the smallest towns.

A few years ago, he found himself in such a spot. As far as applause was concerned, he wasn't getting a thing. He would walk on the stage, go through his routine and walk off with the smallest kind of a hand. But Jim didn't mind, because it wasn't Broadway.

On the same bill with him for three or four towns was a German comedy band. The customers went for this act in a big way, and the outfit was always compelled to take three or four encores. After one performance, the leader approached Thornton.

"Mr. Thornton," he said, "there's something I'd like to ask you. You've played on several bills with us in these small towns and you've noticed how big we go, haven't you?"

Jim nodded.

"Well," the leader went on, "why can't we get a break? Why can't we do the same thing on Broadway?"

Thornton scowled at the other man.

"Because," he grunted sourly, "they like you here!"

Comic Film Sheridan Picture

By MARGARET RUSSELL

It's hard to say who does the most cutting up in The Runaround, the new improved natural color comedy-drama in the Sheridan Square. Mary Brian is a good little chorine who sets out to get her millionaire Geoffrey Kerr with a technique all her own. Diamond bracelets with apartment keys as price tags are too big to fit the third finger of her left hand is her theory. And she sticks to it.

Her fellow chorine Marie Prevost who has a perennial little sister in the hospital gets a bright idea. She and the reluctant Mary engage the services of an inebriate old trooper who is Mary's Pennsylvania Dutch father pro tem. Everything goes smoothly until Johnny Hines throws a wrench into the matrimonial wheels.

Mary runs out on the wedding plans in time to save herself from becoming a "raspberry bride." As a reward she wins the millionaire and there is a fade-out kiss in the church. How to get your man in natural color.

The program includes Fun on the Ice, an Aesop's Fable, Pathe News, a Grantland Rice Sportlight, Younger Years and She Stoops to Conquer, a comedy with Dunbar Pollard and Hallowell Hobbs.

Red Metal Buying Continues Small

NEW YORK, Aug. 8—Purchasing of copper remains small both in the domestic and export markets, with buyers unwilling to pay more than 7½ cents a pound for domestic delivery. Jahnke Longs to Be First Mate of 'Old Ironsides'

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8 (AP)—If the Constitution is sailed into port under its own power at the Yorktown, Pa., anniversary celebration in October, Assistant Secretary Jahncke of the Navy would like to be first mate at least.

He said Secretary Adams would logically be the captain and himself an executive officer. He added he would like to be skipper if Secretary Adams does not take command.

STORM FORCES GLIDERS DOWN

ELMIRA, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A 15-mile an hour wind racing through the Chemung valley yesterday sent a flock of gliders into the air. The craft launched from the 700-foot summit of South Mountain were entries in the National Glider Contest.

Three men gave exhibitions of cloud-hopping until lightning flashes forking down from the thunder clouds under which they sailed drove them to the safety of the earth. They were Warren E. Eaton, Norwich; Albert S. Hastings, Los Angeles, and Prof. R. F. Franklin, Ypsilanti, Mich.

Martin Schempp, Pittsburgh, rode the tail of a storm for an hour before he turned back and glided down to the take-off field. In the air at the same time were August Haller, Pittsburgh; Lieut. R. S. Barnaby, Washington, and Wallace Franklin, of Detroit.

RODEO COWBOY WEDS HERE

In an old-fashioned cowboy and Indian jamboree ceremony, Bobb Cobb, of the Compton-Hughes Rodeo, was married to Margaret Andrews, Sixth street, Duquesne, before a crowd of more than 3,000 people at Kennywood Park last night. Justice of the Peace John R. Eagle, of Homestead, performed the ceremony.

The marriage was the culmination of a whirlwind romance of the Montana cowboy and the Duquesne girl, which started soon after the rodeo came to Pittsburgh.

Following the wedding rites Seminole Indians with the rodeo performed their ancient marriage ritual for the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Cobb will remain with the show, which ends its Pittsburgh engagement tonight.

8,000 CHINESE DROWN IN WEEK

HANKOW, China, Aug. 8.—(AP)—At least 8,000 persons have drowned in the Hankow area within the last week during the unprecedented floods in the Yangtze River Valley.

The estimate, the first official figures released, was based largely on records of the Corpse Recovery Society, which has been gathering bodies coming to the surface by the hundreds.

The river rose again yesterday, while alarming reports of sudden rises of the Yangtze at Chungking and Ichang threatened further afflictions.

The refugee problem became more acute today. Official efforts to transport some of the 250,000 stranded persons from Hankow to the hills behind Wuchang and Hanyang were obstinately resisted, refugees refusing to trade known sufferings for unknown dangers.

BANDITS EARLY, FOOL POLICE

Center avenue police today redoubled their search for two Negro bandits who outwitting police by changing the day of their robberies from Saturday to Friday, held up four chain stores in the district within two hours yesterday.

Their first visit was to an A. & P. store at 21 Magee street, where they obtained $17 after threatening Michael Murphy, the manager, with a revolver.

A few minutes later they invaded a P. H. Butler store at Marion and Forbes streets and rifled the cash register of $35.

In quick succession they robbed an A. & P. store at 614 Herron avenue of $10 and a Kroger store at 648 Herron avenue of $68.

Police, anticipating the usual Saturday stickups of the pair, had planned to station policemen today in the neighborhood of chain stores which mostly fall prey to the bandits.

Canvass for Proxies In Corporation Row

YOUNGSTOWN, O., Aug. 8.—(AP)—John Farrell, of Youngstown, yesterday said his brother, Thomas Farrell, was obtaining proxies for a special meeting August 12 of stockholders of Continental Shares Corporation, at the request of a Columbus lawyer. Inquirers were unable to locate Thomas Farrell.

George L. Gugle, Columbus attorney, recently announced a call for a special stockholders' meeting in an effort to oust the present management. Gugle has filed suit against the management charging mishandling of funds.

Girl's Arrest Brings Ban on 'Dry' Decoys

BUFFALO, N. Y., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Allen S. Bartlett, deputy prohibition director in charge of enforcement in this district, has issued orders prohibiting the use of women and girls as decoys by his agents in their search for evidence of liquor law violations.

The order followed disclosures made by Ruth Callahan, 19, who was arrested on a charge of public intoxication after a collision between a prohibition agent's automobile and a parked car. The girl said she was working as decoy for the agent, Ralph Dell.

Mexico Officer Gets Term as Girl Killer

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Col. Ignacio Rickarday, former chief of staff of the War Department, was sentenced yesterday to nine years imprisonment for the slaying May 15, 1930, of Miss Maria Luisa Morales.

Defense counsel argued he shot the girl while under the influence of a narcotic contained in a cigaret a friend had given him as a joke.

ROW OVER MEAL BRINGS DIVORCE

Her husband came home one Sunday and wanted dinner but found only lunch, so he deserted her, according to Mrs. Bertha M. Rowan, 333 Chalfant street, Beltzhoover, granted a divorce by Judge Samuel H. Gardner in Common Pleas Court from Leslie B. Rowan, of Brooklyn, N. Y. They were married September 17, 1906, and have four children. He left them September 25, 1928, she said, testifying:

"We were not expecting him home and there was just a lunch. He wanted to know where dinner was, and said he would go where he could get a dinner. We had no trouble before that. He was going with other women, coming home about two nights a week."

Prisoner Taken From Deputy, Slain

DE WITT, Ark., Aug. 8.—(AP)—A Negro in custody of a deputy sheriff, enroute to a preliminary hearing on a murder charge, was taken from the officer yesterday and shot to death as he stood on a highway, Henry Cummins, the deputy reported.

Cummins said he was taking John Parker, Negro, to Bayou Meto for the hearing when O. C. Lumsden, white, and John Brooks, Negro, stopped his automobile and, pointing pistols, forced him to surrender Parker. Parker was then ordered to stand on the side of the road while Brooks allegedly shot him. The deputy arrested both men.

Va., is sought for questioning.

MINER SLAYS 3 AND SELF

POTOSI, Mo., Aug. 8.—(AP)—Elbott Missey, 45, a miner of Cannon mines, near here, went into a murderous rage yesterday and after slaying his wife and two neighbors and dangerously wounding a third man, shot and killed himself.

Missey and John Pitzer, 55, a neighbor, quarreled at the bottom of a 15-foot surface mine. Becoming suddenly enraged, Missey seized a double-barrel shotgun and shot Pitzer and Clarence Leach, of Union, Mo., who was also working in the mine.

Pitzer fell dead and Leach was wounded three times. Missey climbed from the mine, walked a quarter of a mile to the home of James Coleman, with whom he is said to have quarreled recently, and shot him to death. Continuing to his own home, Missey called his six children from the house, locked them in a barn and shot and killed his wife. Then he shot himself.

83-MILE FIRE HEMMED IN

SPOKANE, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Forest fire fighters today had ringed the Deer Creek fire with spades and plows for 83 miles, while predictions of rain heartened crews battling other thousands of acres of blazing northwest woods. Near Quinna, Mont., railroad fires were fought by 60 men with a pump.

At Priest River, Idaho, where flames devastated farms and forests, R. Y. Stuart, Washington, D. C., chief forester, joined Maj. Evan W. Kelly in pitting men against the flames.

Rains were predicted in Eastern Washington, North Idaho and Montana, as an ally to the 3,000 fire fighters. The United States Weather Bureau said there was little likelihood of lightning, which has started hundreds of fires in the district.

Australia Seizes Flour for Jobless

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Aug. 8.—(AP)—The seizure of 1,000 tons of flour from local millers, ordered by Premier J. T. Lang to provide bread for the unemployed, failed to break the strike of master bakers opposed to "dole" bread.

The premier yesterday capitulated to the bakers' demand by canceling a contract recently concluded with a company which was to bake the "dole" bread.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Petit Parisien today carried a dispatch from Angers saying Charlie Chaplin had a narrow escape from injury when an automobile in which he was riding with Henri D'Abbadie D'Arrast from Brissac Chateau to Biarritz collided with another motor car near Burgal. One of the occupants of the other automobile was hurt.

AMERICAN ICE JULY SALES HIGHER

Torrid Weather Results In Largest Volume for That Month in 20 Years

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Temperatures during July in the territory served by American Ice Company were the highest for that month for the past 20 years, and as a result American Ice Company sold 15,000 tons more ice than in July 1930. This was an increase of 2½ per cent in ice sales for the month.

In line with the easier tone in commodity prices, however, the price of ice was easier, and despite the larger volume, earnings of the company for the month will not be up to those of July, 1930. Last year American Ice's July profit was $1,135,890 after interest, but before depreciation and federal taxes, comparing with $1,095,842 in July, 1929.

AUGUST OUTLOOK

This year American Ice is reporting earnings only quarterly after deduction of depreciation and federal taxes.

Last year in August American Ice had profit of $1,008,717 after interest, but before depreciation and federal taxes. The month started with abnormally high temperatures, but the latter part was cooler so that for the month the average temperature was only normal. The present month has started with high temperatures.

HALF'S NET LOWER

The easier price tone now prevailing probably will make it difficult for Ice to make up the decline in earnings reported for the first half of 1931. For the six months ended June 30 last, American Ice earned $819,328, equivalent to 62 cents a share on the common stock, against $1,106,528, or $1.09 a common share in the first half of 1930.

Spectator

Improvement Moderate. July Showing Reflects Gain. Buying Power Needed.

By Wall Street Spectator

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—RECENT DEVELOPMENTS in the building industry have only moderately improved the medium term outlook, according to a survey computed by standard statistics.

It is pointed out that July made a better statistical showing than any month in the second quarter, although this occurrence was due more to the deflation in the corresponding month of 1930 than to the moderate advance recorded this year by the public works and utilities branch.

WHILE THE NEXT few months probably will witness a further narrowing of the disparity between current operations and those of a year ago, nothing more than the establishment of a relative degree of stabilization is expected during the remainder of 1931.

The volume of residential building construction does not give evidence of increasing with the rapidity that was anticipated earlier in the year, and present indications are that several months more will be required to check the downtrend. Nonresidential requirements are even less urgent, raising some question that even next year will realize substantial improvement in these branches.

NOT UNTIL PUBLIC purchasing power expands sufficiently to stimulate the absorption of existing surplus space will there be any real incentive for pushing new construction. In short, it is quite clearly evident that the building industry cannot be expected to be among the leaders in the next cyclical upturn of general business.

Under this situation [illegible] together probably earnings of construction building material and realty holding companies in most instances will be sharply lower this year than even the unsatisfactory levels recorded for 1930.

The common stocks in the building group at present prices are considered generally unattractive for the current investment of funds in the opinion of this service. Johns-Manville is regarded as relatively the most attractive issue for strictly long term holding.

F. G. Shattuck's Profits May Cover Extra Dividend

Disclosures regarding F. G. Shattuck's powerful pool which engaged in operations to protect the extra dividend of 50 cents a share paid in 1929 and 1930, will be continued this year. During the first six months of 1931 Shattuck reported a balance of 84 cents a share (basis) business usually reverts to better earnings in the final half of the year. Thus in the initial six months Hupp there is an extraordinary situation that warrants the full year will be above the amount needed to cover the $1 regular dividend and an extra payment of 50 cents. At present level Shattuck is selling to yield slightly better than 5 per cent on its regular dividend and 7½ per cent if the extra is maintained.

Inauguration of dividends on the new Sucony Vacuum stock at the rate of $1.60 a share should serve to bring in any remaining stock of the Vacuum company which has not yet been deposited in exchange for the shares of the new company. The rate on the new company stock merely represents a maintenance of the dividend paid by Standard Oil of New York since 1927. But in the case of Vacuum Oil, it is equivalent to restoration of the old stock of that company to a $4 dividend since Vacuum holders received 2½ shares of the new company stock for each of their own shares. Vacuum Oil is, at present, receiving dividends at the rate of $7 a share annually, the last quarterly payment having been reduced from $1 to 50 cents a share.

Pivotal industrials and specialties which have been among the most popular trading mediums were disposed to ignore the weakness in the railroad list yesterday. Steel common, American Can, American Telephone, Case Threshing Machine and Westinghouse skipped back and forth through the day, varying scarcely a point either way from the closing levels of Thursday night. These stocks appeared to meet sufficient in the way of support buying to sustain them against such sporadic selling as developed from time to time. Demand, however, was in evidence only on a scale down and though it appeared at times that these stocks might be in a somewhat oversold condition lacking of anything in the way of vigorous rally seemed to eliminate such reckoning.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. apparently are getting their full share of the mail order and retail trade business, judging from figures covering the company's first seven sales periods ended July 16. The net profit for that period after depreciation, etc., and extraordinary deduction of $759,000 contributed to unemployment relief, but before federal taxes was $6,008,483 compared with $5,617,567 in the same period a year ago. Bank loans were shown to have been liquidated to the extent of $9,050,000 from the total of $37,090,000 reported on July 16, last year, and inventories written down to $65,161,000, as against $73,294,033 the same time in 1930. The head of the company, commenting on the situation in general, pointed out that the best profits are realized in the last three months of the year.

New Haven was again a soft spot in the railroad list yesterday yielding to the lowest levels since 1928 as nearby demand proved insufficient to absorb moderate but persistent offerings which came into the stock through the morning. At the low levels the issue was selling to return an indicated yield of slightly better than 10 per cent, thus tending to open discussion anent possible developments at the approaching meeting for dividend action scheduled to be held around August 25. The road reported net equivalent to 85 cents a share in the first quarter this year, and net operating income for the first five months was shown to have run about 18.3 per cent below that for the corresponding period in 1930.

Several commission houses have been calling attention to Grand Union Company as one of the issues with an exceptional record, good outlook and at a low price in relation to its earnings. Steady increases in earnings have been reported for the six and one-half years which ended June 30, last. The financial position is strong. On December 31, last, cash alone was in excess of total current liabilities.

BIG SHOEMAKER ON CAPACITY BASIS

Endicott-Johnson Orders Will Keep Plants Active For Several Months Ahead

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Endicott Johnson Corporation currently is on a virtual capacity basis with a sufficient backlog of orders to insure a continuance of this rate for several months. The last half of the current year, hence, should reveal substantially increased operations over the first half, it is said, the initial six months' figure having been influenced by the fact that it contained the benefit of only the last two months' operation of the digital fair.

Now declaring the conditions prevalent in the first half of this year handicap alone of the largest shoe manufacturers in this country reported an increase in net income as compared with the corresponding 1930 period. Its gain reflecting principally lower prices rather than diminution in physical volume, were off about 6 per cent.

COST RATIO DOWN

Despite the decline in sales volume Endicott obtained some benefits from reduced operating costs in the first half of this year. Totaling $23,256,274 after deprecia- tion, the operating costs on the $26,139,936 of sales were equal to about 94 per cent, whereas in the similar period of 1930 costs represented 94.8 per cent and for all of 1930 98.1 per cent. The latter ratio incidentally was the highest for the company in many years.

Net income of $1,333,763 after charges in the first six months of this year showed an increase of 9 per cent as compared with the $1,223,236 earned in the corresponding 1930 period.

1930 POOR YEAR

On the 405,360 shares of $50 par common stock this year's net was equal to $2.51 a share after preferred dividends as against $2.12 a share in the first half of 1930.

Final results for all of 1930 were the poorest since organization of the present company and were due principally to adverse business conditions and the sharp decline in raw materials prices, as an instance touching new low levels for 31 years. In current operations, besides reaping the benefit of an increased volume of business the company stands to gain from the appreciation in inventory values.

Du Pont Activity Shows Increase

WILMINGTON, Aug. 8.—Business of E. I. du Pont de Nemours & Co., Inc., has moderated only seasonally. The better-than-seasonal improvement in practically all lines which became apparent during the early months of the year gathered momentum during the second quarter and gave no indication other than seasonal of any letup in July. Some departments, notably cellophane and rayon, are working at or close to capacity while various others continue to step up production.

Philippine Sugar Hurt by Drought

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Severe drought conditions in the Philippine Islands, characterized as the worst in 20 years, are having a serious effect upon the growth of sugar cane and indications are the crop outturn will fall short of last year's. Earlier estimates placed production at 771,000 long tons against 762,000 turned out in the 1929-1930 campaign. However, it is too early to forecast the extent of the damage by drouth since harvesting will not begin until November.

Canada Assures Against Wheat Panic

OTTAWA, Aug. 8.—Following the agreement reached at the conference of wheat pool representatives, governmental officials and bankers the Dominion Government has undertaken a guarantee against panics (collapses) in the wheat market and will co-operate with the provincial pools to assure orderly marketing of the wheat crop, according to an announcement by Premier Bennett.

The pool country elevators, numbering 1,600 in the three western provinces as well as the pool terminals will be operated on the same basis as privately-owned elevators and will make initial payments to grain growers of 35 cents a bushel. Pool membership in all three provinces will be on a voluntary basis.

REPUBLIC DEAL UNDER FIRE

CLEVELAND, Aug. 8.—(AP)—Nullification of the agreement whereby the Republic Steel Corporation gave 22,340 shares of the old Republic Iron and Steel Company common stock to the Cleveland Cliffs Iron Corporation in exchange for 50,000 shares of Truscon Cliffs Furnace Company common stock was sought in a suit here yesterday. The suit was filed by Attorneys Wilkin, Krewson & Wilkin for E. B. Dyson of Akron and Jennie W. Rudedi of Garrettsville. The stock was valued at $1,650,000. The plaintiffs demand its return or the payment of that amount.

Defendants are the Republic Steel Corporation, Cleveland Cliffs and officers and directors of the companies, including Cyrus S. Eaton, Cleveland financier, William G. Mather, J. O. Eaton, F. B. Greene, T. N. Girdler and others.

NEW ORLEANS MAYOR INDICTED

NEW ORLEANS, Aug. 8.—(AP)—The Orleans Parish grand jury yesterday indicted Mayor T. S. Walmsley, returning two bills charging violation of the law of investing city trust funds and failure to have the books of the funds properly kept.

Notified at city hall of the indictments the Mayor drove immediately to the Criminal Courts Building and submitted himself to authorities. He was released on two bonds of $500 each.

The indictments were returned after several weeks' investigation by the grand jury into the administration of city funds. The inquiry was started while Mayor Walmsley was in Paris with the visiting mayors.

Household Finance Plans Expansion

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—D. C. Bull and Charles D. Frey have been added to the directorate of Household Finance Corporation.

The company has opened six new offices within the past 60 days, bringing the total in operation to 147. An additional six offices will be opened in the near future.

Seeks Place on Alton R. R. Board

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Frederick H. Rawson of Chicago, a director of the Baltimore and Ohio and the Burlington railroads, has asked the Interstate Commerce Commission's authority to hold a similar position on the Alton Railroad Company board.

Becoming to Larger Figures

Pattern 1975

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Daily Pattern

By ANNE ADAMS

Every frock belonging to the new fashions must be flattering, and the frock for the larger woman must be particularly so. As the neckline is nearest the face, a soft collar line is one of the most effective ways of making a frock becoming. This model has a jabot cut narrow enough to give the effect of long lines, and shaped into a point that matches the pointed line in which the skirt is joined to the top. A loose belt at the waistline marks the waist without too severely breaking the line from shoulder to hem. Long sleeves are included.

Obtainable only in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46. Size 38 requires 3⅛ yards of 39-inch material. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our patern.

CRUCIBLE HOLDS MORE COMMON STOCK

Estimated Company Bought About 23,400 More of Its Own Shares in First Half

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—Crucible Steel Company of America increased holdings of its common stock by $1,170,358 in the first half of this year, the balance sheet as of June 30, 1931, showing common holdings totaling $3,645,269 compared with $2,474,911 December 31, 1930. The cash position of the company was reduced $1,113,458 during the half year. Holdings of common as of June 30, 1931, were carried below the market value. The range of the stock this year has been between 59¾ and 63.

Since the common stock is carried below market prices as of June 30, 1931 (the closing price of Crucible common on that date was 63¾), it may be assumed that the company purchased at least 23,407 common shares during the first half. Based on the lowest price at which the stock sold this year, 30¾, the company could have purchased around 33,000 shares.

CASH REDUCED

The company had $2,869,171 in cash on June 30, 1931, compared with $3,982,629 on December 31, 1930. Other current assets on June 30, 1931, included $128,973 notes receivable, $2,979,654 accounts receivable and $19,631,215 inventories. Excluding inventories, the company had $5,976,898 current assets against $2,754,635 current liabilities. Preferred dividend requirements total $1,750,000 annually.

Crucible omitted common dividends in March this year. The stock had been on a $5 annual basis since June, 1927, when the rate was reduced $1 from the $6 rate previously in effect.

HALF'S NET $482,830

Crucible's inability to earn preferred dividend requirements in the first half of this year is not surprising in view of the unsatisfactory conditions existing in the steel industry. The company reported net profit of $482,830 after charges and taxes, equal to $1.93 a share on 250,000 shares of 7 per cent preferred stock, compared with $2,317,733 in the first half of 1930 or the equivalent of $7.62 a share on the 250,000 shares of common then outstanding.

ROUND TABLE OF BUSINESS

STEEL PRICE SITUATION STABLE

Industry Bends Efforts To Reduce Expenses, Working Hours

By B. F. Fitzgerald

The most satisfactory feature of the steel trade situation at present is the fact that prices are holding firm. Some decline could have been expected in view of the sharp curtailment in production, but this has not occurred. Except for a few items, such as wire products, which have been cut $2 a ton, and sheet bars, which have been reduced $3 a ton, prices are unchanged. Steel bars, structural shapes, plates, pig iron and coke are all being held at the prices which prevailed before the recent slump in business.

Strenuous efforts are being made to prevent any reduction in wages, which explains the stand against any reduction in hourly wage rates at the Ford plant. Reductions in wages and salaries have been made in many cases, but generally speaking, the steel workers have been comfortably low. Through such influences the steel industry might work up above a 50 per cent operating rate, but there is no expectation of sustaining a 50 per cent average for any length of time without substantial improvement in general trade.

Railway Operating Income Declines

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Class I railroads of the United States for the first six months of 1931 had a net railway operating income of $238,550,146, which was at an annual return of 2.15 per cent on their property investment, according to reports just filed by the carriers with the Bureau of Railway Economics. In the first six months of 1930 their net railway operating income was $337,379,211, or 3.06 per cent on their property investment.

National Steel Net Profit Holds at High Rate

By George B. Snyder

DIRECTORS OF THE NATIONAL Steel Corporation [illegible] regular quarterly dividend of 50 cents a share [illegible] August 14. In addition it is quite probable [illegible] will be taken in the near future on the ques[illegible] a bonus to office workers.

[illegible] National Steel have been opposed to reduc[illegible] wages. The company is practically the only im[illegible] which has not made a cut up to the [illegible]. They feel, however, that a salary reduction has [illegible] necessary in order to keep their operations on a [illegible] with those of other companies.

[illegible] operations were maintained at a satisfactory rate. A [illegible] has taken place this month. It is early to make a [illegible] of earnings for the third quarter, but it [illegible] that they will be close to the dividend require[illegible] $1.50 a share for the period.

To Cover Year's Dividend

IN THE FIRST QUARTER 89 cents a share was earned, the second quarter net was equivalent to 71 cents, making [illegible] share earnings of $1.60 for the first half of the year. [illegible] covered dividend requirements for three quarters [illegible] 90 cents a share. It will be necessary for the com[illegible] 40 cents a share more to cover its full year's [illegible] requirements of $2 a share. This probably will be [illegible] with some margin to spare in the present quarter and [illegible] of the second quarter, also netting profits for the year [illegible] the $2 mark.

Detroit Plants at Profit

THE AUTOMOBILE INDUSTRY is operating at a low [illegible] and has been buying steel only in small quantities. In [illegible] however, National Steel's new Detroit plants are [illegible] at a profit.

[illegible] regarded as an exceptionally favorable indication [illegible] future prospects of Detroit operations. It is unusual [illegible] plants to be profitable during the early months of their [illegible]. It is even more remarkable for them to be profit[illegible] at a time when business is at the lowest point in 20 years. The last unit at Detroit, a merchant bar mill, has just been completed. The first units have been in production only a few months.

Capitalization Small

NATIONAL'S CAPITALIZATION is extremely con[illegible] for a steel company. Its funded debt amounted to only $43,150,000 after giving effect to the sale of $40,000,000 of 5 per cent bonds early this year. Earnings in the first half of the present year were more than four times interest charges on these securities had they been outstanding for the full period.

With a property account of $101,891,664 and total assets $137,408,532 at the close of 1930, the debt appears to be conservative. There is no preferred stock. A total of 2,156,829 shares of common stock are outstanding.

BUILDING GLASS DEMAND LOW

A new month has [illegible] improvement in the demand for building glass, according to American Glass Review. Manufacturers are not surprised as had been anticipated. August, following the example of July, will be a relatively slow month. Little real improvement is expected before the glass season gets under way after Labor Day.

However, with stocks in the hands of distributors at an exceptionally low point, any consumer demand would be reflected immediately in requisitions on factories. The general trend has been slow with little apparent desire on the part of jobbers to increase stocks in spite of prevailing low prices, especially in window glass.

While movement of window glass in July was fair compared to the corresponding month in recent years it was not sufficient to take production, although output has been curtailed. It is expected that production will move up, at least slightly, during August in anticipation of an improved demand in September, October and November.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Following the meeting of the Chicago Federal Reserve Bank no announcement was made regarding the rediscount rate, which is 2½ per cent.

LUBRICANT OIL PRICES UP

NEW YORK, Aug. 8.—As a result of the recent advances in Pennsylvania grade crude oil there has been a strengthening in the market for cylinder and bright stocks from which lubricating oils are made. Over the past 10 days the advance of 3 to 5 cents has taken place in 600 steam refined cylinder stock, which is quoted at 21 cents a gallon, while bright stock is bringing 25 cents a gallon, an advance of 8 to 10 cents.

The shutdown in Oklahoma also has resulted in a stronger market for lubricants in the mid-continent field and several refiners are hard put to secure crude oil for their operations and many will have to close down.

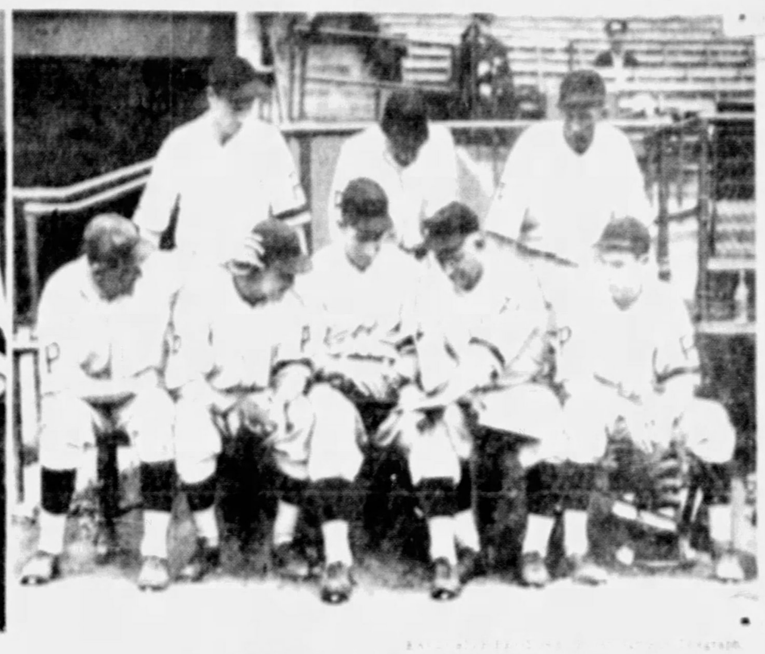
Pirate Pitchers Going Great?—Look Behind the Scenes and You'll Find Ol' Doc Crandall Working There

RETAINS OLD FORM ON MOUND

OSCAR STANAGE — MGR. JEWEL ENS — DOC CRANDALL

GIVING CHARLEY WOOD ADVICE



A SCHOOL FOR PITCHERS AT FORBES FIELD

The Pirates are getting the best pitching of any club in the National League, the recent record of 45 consecutive scoreless innings being an example. There is a reason for this brilliant work, and it is to be found in the coaching of Otis "Doc" Crandall, veteran former major league pitcher who saw service for almost 25 years and still can take a turn on the mound as he did in a recent exhibition game. He also pitches to the batters in practice. Doc has done a lot of good work ironing out the rough spots in the form of the Corsair fingers and has proved a valuable assistant to Manager Jewel Ens, along with Oscar Stanage. old Detroit catcher. All of the younger Pirate pitchers are profuse in their praise of his coaching. In the large group photo at the right above are, left to right: Back row—Spencer, Meine and Osborn. Front row—Catcher Phillips, French, Brame, Crandall and Wood. Crandall was a contemporary of the great Christy Mathewson, Rube Marquard, Leon Ames, George Wiltse and Bugs Raymond on the pitching staff of the New York Giants and was caught by Roger Bresnahan. A son, Jimmy, 15, is a pitching star in California and has been sought by several major league scouts touring that section.

VETERANS DIFFER ON VALUE OF STEAL

WITH EVEN THE Pirates joining in the series of running races which various major league clubs have been holding for several weeks to determine which fastest men, it is evident that the thoughts of the players are turning to speed again since the introduction of a less lively ball and the revival of base stealing by Ben Chapman, Roy Johnson and others. The value of the stolen base, however, appears still to be a debatable subject in the playing ranks. The athletes do not agree on its importance as a factor in the winning of games.

Jack Onslow

Waite Hoyt, former Yankee and Tiger pitcher, now with the A's, is one of those holding that the value of base stealing in the modern game is exaggerated, and he points to the records of the White Elephants and the Tigers in support of his contention. The A's have stolen only 17 bases up to date, fewer than any other club in either league, but they're running away with the pennant with a lead of 11 games. The Jungaleers have stolen 79 bags, second only to the Yankees, who have swiped 96, but they're buried in last place.

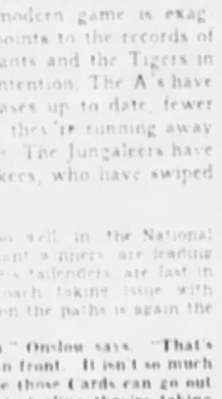
HOYT'S CLAIM DOESN'T stand up so well in the National League where the Cardinals, probable pennant winners, are leading in sack thefts with 68 and the Reds, hopeless tailenders, are last in steals with only 18. Jack Onslow, Philly coach, taking issue with Hoyt, declares that the stolen base or speed on the paths is again the big thing in baseball.

"The extra base is winning games again," Onslow says. "That's the real reason why the Cards are so far out in front. It isn't so much the pitching. It isn't the reserves. It's because those Cards can go out and grab that extra base. When they're not stealing they're taking two bases on short singles or even on outs. Every man on the club can run. They're hitting only .281, but look where they are. Nor is it true that the Cubs have slowed down as much as some of the critics think. Likely they haven't slowed down at all. The game has just gone back to speed, and that makes 'em look slow."

IT WAS THE speed shown by Chapman, who has stolen 43 bases, that led to the mad league revival this season. In his latest 100-yard dash Chapman beat Dusty Cooke, a teammate, and Bill Cissell, of the White Sox. A novel feature of this race was the appearance in it of Bill Robinson, famous Negro tap dancer.

Robinson was given a 25-yard start and ran 75 yards backward while the other runners faced forward. Robinson claimed he had never been defeated in a race of that kind, but this time Chapman beat him to the tape with Cooke pulling up right behind Robinson and Cissell finishing last.

WHEN HE STRETCHED the Cardinals' pennant lead to eight games by shutting out the Cubs yesterday, Burleigh Grimes gained the leadership of the National League pitchers in number of victories. It was Burleigh's fourteenth win of the season against seven defeats. Ed Brandt, of the Braves; Jumbo Elliott, of the Phillies, and Fred Fitzsimmons, of the Giants, are tied for second place in number of games won, each having captured 13. Charley Root, of the Cubs, comes next with 12. Lorry French leads the Pirate gunners with 11 triumphs. He will shoot for No. 12 in one of the games of tomorrow's doubleheader in Cincinnati, and expresses the confidence that he will have a chance to reach the 20 mark before the season closes. He won 17 last year.



Lank Shellenback

LEFTY GROVE'S pitching percentage of .917, resulting from 22 victories and only two defeats, is the wonder of the majors, but there is one hurler in the minors who has it beaten. After pitching 22 games Frank Shellenback, of the Hollywood club in the Pacific Coast League, boasts the amazing percentage of .955.

Shellenback, who is barred out of the big leagues because he is a spitball pitcher, has continued his sensational winning streak until he has just turned in his twentieth victory, while suffering only one defeat. He wound up the 1930 season with 14 consecutive wins, so that he has won 34 of his last 35 games.

LOCAL FRIENDS OF George Susce, Oakland product, will be pleased to learn that the former Schenley High School athlete is starting in the catcher's role for the Springfield (Ill.) club in the Three-I League, a Kansas City farm. Susce showed up so well with Kansas City in the spring that when the Blue owners assigned Bill Wambsganss to manage Springfield Wamby made a request for George's services.

So Susce went into the smaller league for more experience. Besides catching good ball for the league leaders he is batting well, home runs being feature numbers of his offensive work. His hustling spirit is noted wherever he goes. Susce jumped direct from high school to the Phillies, a gap rarely bridged. He showed much promise with the Quakers but was let go because he needed experience.

YANKEE STARS NEED SINGLE TRIUMPH

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 8 (AP)—Due to two sensational finishes, the first of which saw Helen Jacobs prevail over Betty Nuthall, blonde British favorite, the United States put the British Wightman Cup team to rout yesterday by sweeping the first three singles matches of the international series.

The California "triple threat" of the American forces proved entirely too much for the invaders as Helen Wills Moody, the acknowledged world queen of the courts, and Mrs. Anna McCune Harper, the No. 1 national ranking star, helped Miss Jacobs carry the day with the loss of only one set.

Miss Jacobs furnished the chief thrills for a sweltering gallery of nearly 5,000 spectators by coming back after the loss of the first four games to take the measure of Miss Nuthall, holder of the American singles championship, by scores of 3-6, 6-4.

Mrs. Moody scored the most decisive victory of the day as she disposed of Phyllis Mudford, 6-1, 6-4.

Becoming more prolonged as the shadows crept over the big West Side stadium, the day's battle was concluded as Mrs. Harper staged a courageous finish to beat Dorothy Round in a marathon match that consumed one hour and 45 minutes. The scores were 6-3, 4-6, 9-7.

The United States requires only one more victory to clinch the cup which England won last year by a 4-3 margin and which each nation has held four times since it was put into competition in 1923 by Hazel Hotchkiss Wightman, of Boston, the captain of this year's American team.

Four matches are scheduled today to wind up the series, featured by the singles encounter between Miss Nuthall and Mrs. Moody, but it will take considerable improvement for the No. 1 player of the British team to make much impression on Queen Helen's present game.

EXPLANATION OF RIPLEY'S CARTOON OF YESTERDAY. A 328-POUND BLACK SEA BASS CAUGHT BY ELMER LATZ—In a 42-minute fight with the giant 328-pound black sea bass, July 8, 1928, Latz succeeded in landing it—using only a nine-strand line, which is supposed to support only 18 pounds dead weight. Latz, who lives at 1227 South Central, Glendale, Cal., weighed only 128 pounds at the time. The accomplishment is verified by the Southern California Rod and Reel Club.

The remarkably long home stay of the Pirates is fast drawing to a close. The Bucs and Reds will stage a single game in the Oakland ecclesiastic this afternoon after which the two clubs will leave for Cincinnati, where tomorrow they will present one of those famous, of infamous, baseball bills.

The Redmen will hustle back to the home grounds when they wind up their present activities with the Reds. On Monday they will take on the Cubs in a contest that was moved back to this date owing to an earlier postponement. The Monday attraction will end the long home stay and the Pirates will jump for New York Monday night.

MEINE TO HURL

Heinie Meine and Silas Johnson are slated to twirl the finale at Forbes Field today. The Prince of Luxemburg has been one of the Pittsburgh mainstays this season, but he may have to be right at his top form to achieve a triumph over his rooting foe. In the opinion of Dan Howley, manager of the Reds, Johnson is one of the best of the younger pitchers of the league.

The Ehmen made short work of the Rhinelanders yesterday in the second game of the series. Perhaps the Pirates were still peeved over the sad events of the previous afternoon as they tore into the Hawkeyemen at a furious clip at the outset of the battle. Lloyd Waner opened the smashing offensive with a spunky single to right and Woodie Jensen spanked an even spunkier swat to the same pasture for two bases.

START HEAVY ATTACK

The drives of the two leadoff batters seemed to be the signal for a bombardment on Charles Frederick (Bob) Lucas, generally a tough nut for the Pirates to crack. Lucas halted the onslaught for one brief moment as he made Grantham pop out, but Capt. Traynor came through with a double to right, and P. Waner socked out a similar hit.

Bojarski Wins Over Billy Wallace

ERIE, Pa., Aug. 8.—Frankie Bojarski, Erie southpaw, defeated Billy Wallace, of Philadelphia, formerly of Cleveland, in a 10-round bout here last night. Bojarski won in decisive fashion, knocking Wallace through the ropes with a left to the jaw in the fifth round and keeping the Philadelphian on the defensive throughout the last half of the scrap. It was Bojarski's forty-first consecutive victory.

Chisox, Colonels, Hens in Deal

TOLEDO, Aug. 8.—(AP)—A deal involving the Chicago White Sox, Louisville Colonels and Toledo Mudhens was completed last night with the announcement that Mel Simons, outfielder, had been released to the Toledo club by Chicago.

The White Sox recalled Bob Weiland, lefthanded pitcher from the Colonels, and Toledo sent Carl Mays, veteran submarine performer, to the Kentucky team on an optional agreement.

Baseball's Comedian

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Well, the Cubs just bought a second baseman, so I guess that makes Rogers Hornsby a rocking chair athlete from now on. It was only last spring a phrenologist read Hornsby's bumps and gave him the bad news. But Rogers thought she was reading his coffee cup and misinterpreted the bumps. Anyway that now leaves Hornsby as just manager of the Cubs with Joe McCarthy managing the Yankees. When you gaze at their respective league standings they shape up like Siamese Twins. It proves when Wrigley swapped horses in mid-stream a year ago he might not have got his feet wet, but he was no David Harum, either.

ST. LOUIS, Aug. 8 (AP).—President Sam Breadon of the St. Louis Cardinals announced tonight that Charles E. Gabby Street would manage the team again next year.

Breadon in announcing the reappointment of Street said his decision was not due to the fact the Cardinals have the National League pennant safely, because Street's judgment, ability and courage have been proven day after day and week after week, while he relieved Bill McKechnie for a time during the fag end of the 1930 pennant race.

Street signed a one-year contract, Breadon announced.

a resumption of the annual Army-Navy game will come out of the action of the Navy graduates in issuing a questionnaire to sound out members on the subject. The game was always the gridiron sport's most colorful number and its return to the yearly schedule would help football in general. The break occurred after the game of 1927, and the cause was the Navy's demand that intercollegiate eligibility rules be applied to the contest of 1928 and later meetings. These rules provide that a man may play only three years of varsity football, whether in a private college, a state university, or a military or naval academy. The Navy had put such a rule in effect, but the Army insisted that so long as a cadet was in good standing he was eligible to play on an Army team for his full four years, regardless of whether he had previously played college football elsewhere.

VICTORY IS SWEETEST when it is snatched in the face of threatening defeat. The sensational comeback made by Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, Miss Hazel Jacobs and Mrs. Lawrence A. Harper in the first three singles matches of the Wightman Cup competition was all the more gratifying because the English team had looked as though it might prove too strong for the American women this year.

The great start makes the recapture of the trophy here this country in the closing matches today appear practically certain. The fall of the American Davis Cup team on the final day of the round with England showed that even tennis may have its upsets, but with only a single victory needed in today's four matches there is hardly a chance that Mrs. Moody and the other United States players will fail to win back the Wightman trophy.

EDDIE HIRSHBERG, captain of the University of Pittsburgh football team for this year, will be the seventh player in Pitt history to lead the Panther gridiron forces from an end position.

The other terminal captains since Pitt adopted as the first tasks in collegiate football were Homer Rice in 1909, Jack Linders in 1911, Hube Wagner in 1911, Cliff Carlson in 1917, Lloyd Jordan in 1923 and Blair MacMillan in 1926.

Eddie Hirshberg

OF THESE, WAGNER, Carlson and Jordan were the most famous. Hirshberg, the second appointed captain at Pitt, has a good chance of winning a comparatively large measure of fame, barring a return of the injury hoodoo that has vamped on his trail since he entered the university. The former McKeesport High fullback has all the requisites of a good terminal. He possesses an uncanny ability to catch passes, his seizure of Franklin Hood's long heave in the Ohio State game having been one of the best seen anywhere last season. Besides he is a good blocker and the deadliest tackler on the Pitt team.

Marks led from the start, at no time being down to the Johnstown golfer. He was out in 38 on the first nine, Reese taking a 41. He came back in 36 and was 5 up at the end of the first 18. He then went on to win in the thirteenth green.

The Edgewood-South Hills match may have vital bearing upon the destiny of the loop championship and 1931 possession of the Davis Keg symbolic thereof, for the Smith stars repose but a single notch ahead of P. A. A. in the upper division standing and must whitewash the Hill-Toppers in order to assure continuance of Edgewood sway atop the circuit. Today's affair winds up the campaign for Edgewood, whereas P. A. A. with a home engagement still pending with College Ave., may improve its standing in event of a Suburban slip-up against South Hills.

Only part of the College Ave.-West Penn Power melee will be completed this afternoon, at least one doubles affair and perhaps two or three singles tilts being likely to be held over until next week.

COAST GOLFERS IN FINAL

ST. PAUL, Aug. 8.—(AP).—"California, Here I Come" was the theme song of the national public links golf championship today.

When the divots stopped flying on the rain-drenched Keller Club course late yesterday, the only contenders left for the big crown of free course golf in America were two sons of California, Joe Nichols, 18-year-old high school sophomore from Long Beach and Charley Ferrara, steel worker, from San Francisco.

The two will fight it out today for the title Bob Wingate, of Jacksonville, Fla., dropped by failing to qualify over the 36 hole route.

There wasn't much to choose between the two finalists, but Nichols won the support of the galleries by his great comeback in his semi-final struggle with Ed Greenway, of Seattle, Wash. The Long Beach youth, after being 3 down at the end of the first 16 holes, came back with almost perfect golf to square the route on the sixteenth and then win it on the final carpet when Greenway missed a one-foot putt for a halve in par 5s.

Ferrara also was forced to fight an uphill battle in his final match although the odds against nearly as heavy against him. He rose to at the turn in his battle against Charles Albertus, of Philadelphia. Ferrara squared the contest on the tenth and breezed to victory, 3 and 1, by laying his rival a dead stymie on the seventeenth green. In a quarter-final fight Ferrara eliminated Horace Lacey, of Little Rock, Ark., 4 and 3.

SUN-TELEGRAPH TO REWARD VICTORS

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Final contests in the inter-park elimination series of the second annual Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Pittsburgh public parks tennis championships will lure Steel City net fans to the Frick Park lot at Forbes street and Braddock avenue this afternoon.

The municipal melting in progress here for nearly a fortnight reaches climax with prospect of extra-speedy competition in the final tussles on which depend directly the local parks titles; possession of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph Men's and Women's Parks Challenge Cups and the right to represent the Pittsburgh area as guests of the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph at the national public parks championships, beginning on Monday, August 17 at Detroit.

CHAMPIONS BACK

Premiers of 1930 will be defending hard-won crowns in both of the impending trophy tilts. In the masculine division, Frank Broida, Harvard luminary, will rear the Frick standard into battle with Billy Creighton, Olympia star and former mainstay of the St. Marys of the Mount High School, while in the feminine classification, Mrs. Jean Artzberger, another Olympian, is slated to oppose Mildred Klages, clever West Park delegate. Broida downed Irvin Goodman, of Schenley, in the titular bracket a year ago, Mrs. Artzberger having defeated Letitia Schmidt, likewise a Schenleyite, in the course of the same festivities.

Both Broida, a southpaw, and Creighton, a starboard clouter, boast altogether orthodox styles of play. The titleholder flashes fair, though not exceptionally powerful service, a strong, accurate forehand, a vastly improved backhand, a crisp system of sharply-angled volleys, and a somewhat erratic overhead.

The Artzberger-Klages debate will see the driving game of the former jolted against the chop thrusts of the North Side satellite.

EXPECT LARGE GALLERY

Prospect of large gallery for the windup program is excellent, for, in addition to the parks events, there will be special card of exhibition singles and doubles involving Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, former Western Pennsylvania champion; Jack Lauler, P. A. A. Austin Famariss, College Avenue star, and John Brown, Mt. Lebanon ace, late of Latrobe.

David J. McCahill, Pittsburgh member of the Public Parks Tennis Committee of the United States Lawn Tennis Association, will be on hand to present the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph flagons to the victorious racqueters. Other dignitaries slated to attend are Supt. of Parks James Moore, Frick Park Supt. Harvey Crass and President J. Phillips Davis, of the Pittsburgh Tennis Association. Activities will get under way promptly at 2 o'clock.

BOXERS DUF TOMORROW

Johnny Jadick, of Philadelphia, and Sammy Dorfman, of New York lightweight stars, are due here tomorrow for their 10-round main bout in the Meyers Bowl, North Braddock, Monday night.

Each has turned in a victory in the same arena, Jadick recently handing Tony Herrera his first local defeat there and Dorfman winning over Eddie Brannon.

Billy Rose, of Cincinnati, who recently scored a hit boxing Tiger Joe Randall at the Bowl, returns against Young Rudy, of Charleroi, in the eight-round semi-final.

Between Rounds

Louis Rose, of the Y.M.H.A. Club of Turtle Creek, will make his professional debut against Ira Brams, of Ambridge, in the opening bout on the Jackie Rodgers-Max Reich card at the Duquesne Park Athletic field Thursday night.

The entry list closes tonight for the Pro Olympic Golden Gloves amateur mitt tourney to be staged at the Tuxedo Seventh Ward A. C. arena on the North side next Tuesday and Wednesday evenings.

Frankie Edwards and Sal Lee will box the 10-round semi-final of a three at Ball Brothers A. C. near Florida, night. Jack Dyer and Joe Pasko are in the main go.

Now comes Harry [illegible] and what he says is pretty. Does it give you any help? Why Sally don't you write to Clara?

Dear Sally Martin:

Melody gave both the dumb dames. But he left out the why. I'll tell you. I have been married twice. My first husband was a flop. Why did I do it? Because I was afraid of looking at [illegible] flat-chested neck because she knew more about Einstein and Darwin than I did and so — because she competed with me swearing, smoking and everything else.

She dressed as mannishly as possible and even likes to wear the same kind of neckties that men wear. She made me feel so superfluous that one night day I decided that enough was enough.

Beau Ideal

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

The writer sat in on an argument between two antique ladies who had sent out into the world a good round dozen of children between them.

And the tug of war in words was "should children be allowed to hero-worship or not?"

And, thought the writer, "as though they could be allowed to or prevented from doing the thing that millions of young people have always normally done?"

And, thought the writer, who has sprung up from five years of age to I'd-rather-not-tell-how-much, hero-worshiping pretty much all along the way, "I'm for the hero-worship—it has fired more young minds than humble I could venture to compile!"

The very reading of some names to young people—and grandmothers, too, is a battle-cry—a trumpet-summons to success and greatness; as much greatness as the brain of the inspired reader can acquire. Many a young girl fastens the face of a great man, soldier, sailor, writer, statesman, philanthropist, actor, to the wall by her dressing-table, and, never seeing him all her life, is inspired, made innocently happy, influenced to good and big things, and goes through the loneliest love-affair of her life.

All the better if his private life is of a color with his public fame—but if it isn't, sometimes the ardent young person never knows, and some time getting to know, is too old for it to break any rainbow bubbles.

Boys and girls grow and strive by the story of a great person—and there's one person who thinks it natural, and good for them to set up a Beau-Ideal.

—NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Not Necessary

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1 If a girl wears a veil is it necessary to have her father give her in marriage? My father refuses to do this and I should like to wear a veil.

2 Is it necessary to have a reception just because you wear a veil, or would it be proper for the wedding party of four to go to supper as we intend to go right away?

3 Is it necessary to have invitations printed or can we do without them?

4 If the wedding is at 5 o'clock on a Sunday evening, does the groom wear tuxedo or full dress suit?

M. F.

1 Usually it isn't required that a girl be given in marriage unless she wishes to have this part of the ceremony included. Part to have a talk with the minister who is to perform the ceremony and ask him about this. If isn't the fact that you are planning to wear a veil that is the answer but whether or not your determination demands this part of the ceremony.

2 It is not at all necessary to have a reception even if you have the most formal of weddings and wear the bridal veil.

3 If you are having only a few people to your wedding, it is not at all necessary to have printed invitations. Your mother may write a note of invitation, or if this is not convenient, you may write the note of invitation.

4 Neither. A 5 o'clock wedding is a day wedding and the groom should therefore wear day clothes. Since you are planning to wear formal clothes, he, too, should, of course, be consistent with your attire wear formal day clothes. These are the cutaway coat and dark striped trousers.

Formal Glasses

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

Will you please tell us if it is incorrect to wear "pone" glasses to a formal dinner or a formal party of any description?

READER.

It is better "sartorially" to have glasses of a more formal character for the evening wear and for formal wear. And nowadays, makers of eye-glasses make this much easier than formerly by designing glasses of various kinds that are appropriate for occasions of varying formality.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

'An Apple a Day'—and Medical Science Agrees

Here comes a new medical use for the apple. Because of recent work conducted in Berlin a diet of finely grated apples is recommended for young children with diarrhoea. Surprising, isn't it?

Dr. Copeland

Acute or chronic diarrhoea is a frequent complaint of very young children. In addition to its being a rather stubborn condition to treat it often leaves the child in a very weakened condition. Following such an attack and even after prolonged treatment the child suffers from lowered resistance and may succumb to some other ailment.

In preparing this diet which is called the Moro apple diet ripe mellow apples are peeled. The seeds and cores are carefully removed and the apple is reduced to a fine pulp by a grater.

The child receives three to four ounces of this food at each mealtime. No other food is given. No medication is given and its supporters say it is not necessary to give enemas.

The diet is satisfying and so the child does not complain of hunger. In cases of extreme thirst an occasional drink of cold water or tea may be given.

It is reported that in nearly 100 per cent of the cases the cure of the diarrhoea was prompt. After the diarrhoea ceases there may be a slight tendency toward constipation. This is temporary and usually adjusts itself.

As a rule the treatment is extended over a period of three to four days. If the condition reappears the treatment may be repeated.

There is a lot of nourishment in this diet. No one need fear that the child will starve.

Those who are familiar with the annoying and distressing symptoms of chronic or acute diarrhoea in a child will welcome this suggestion. It is so simple and so obviously harmless that it is worth trying. Anyhow, I wanted you to know what the Berlin doctors are doing.

The Cardiac Clinic

By DOROTHY ROE

Home, sweet home,
Lest we forget
Is now one room
And a kitchenette.

Life is much simpler for the bride of today than it was for, say, her grandmother.

It used to be that a young wife had to know how to run a complete household, bake her own bread, learn the secrets of a huge coal range, put up preserves and relishes, take care of the garden and make feather beds and quilts in her spare time.

She had to have a supply of household linen and silver that would run a small hotel.

She was expected to have a complete knowledge of cooking, sewing and China painting.

And we haven't mentioned the problems of the husband.

Before he ever could think of being married, he had to have the capital to buy a house and lot, furnish seven or eight rooms in the best red plush and golden oak, and perhaps provide a horse and buggy.

Nowadays the newlyweds are more casual about it all.

They can be married on Friday, take the week-end for a honeymoon, and move into a furnished one-room kitchenette which is completely equipped with everything they need, from dish towels to salad forks.

Both of them will eat lunch at a nearby soda fountain, and for dinner she can gather up an appetizing salad at the delicatessen around the corner, and broil a steak in five minutes after she returns home from work.

When she arrives home the community maid already has straightened up the apartment, and everything is shipshape for the arrival of the lord and master.

Life may not be so calm and sure in these high-speed times, but it's certainly a lot less trouble.

In the old days a young man was expected to court his lady love for a couple of years.

Now a couple of weeks is considered ample.

Then marriages were rarely [illegible] planned to last a lifetime.

These days we leap headlong into matrimony, and if it doesn't work out we call for a new deal.

We live in a kitchenette age — kitchenette love, rapid service marriage, and cash and carry divorce.

It's hard on the nerves, but at least it's convenient.

The Beauty Box

By HELEN FOLLETT

If your eyebrows don't extend pretty well over toward your temples you'll have to put on an extension with an eyebrow pencil. The idea is to have them fairly narrow and very long. The off-the-phiz hat has made women eyebrow conscious, and there's considerable to do about keeping them in form. If they're dyed, and often they are, don't let the dyer talk you into wearing black ones. Dark brown is the correct color.

One reason why the modern woman stays young and sweet is because she has forgotten how to cry. Weeping, Whining and Bellering Bess belong to an age that is gone. Time was when women, not so often, had a "good cry." It was supposed to afford relief. They have learned that it does nothing of the sort. Giving way to violent emotions disturbs the digestion, digs furrows in the celestial face, chills the skin, starts the central nervous system to jangling, is no earthly good whatsoever.

To keep the complexion fresh, clear and fine it must have daily attention. It is flayed by harsh winds, blistered by the sun, ground to bits by accumulations of atmospheric dust. At bedtime there should be a rousing scrubbing with cold rinsing and a five-minute tapping with a tissue building cream. Every morning it should receive its quota of cold water, a gentle drying, more cream, and any trimmings that you want to add.

Women are getting beauty these days by means of kilowatts. Electric face patters are strengthening sagging tissues and vibrators are used to pound off fat cells from neck and arms. Through the electric current superfluous hair is put out of business. Electric horses are installed in gymnasiums, the dear creatures ride them and jolt inches from hips and thighs. The latest trick is the electrical manicuring machine which files finger nails, softens cuticle and puts on a grand polish.

Inmates of Farmhouse Decide to Investigate Bomb

[illegible] father had switched it on when Dicky started his spoof for the supposed bomb which the bank robbers had hurled into the farmyard. The rest of us stared at the Chief, the name lovingly given to my father by those who served under him in the secret service during the World War. What could he mean by his counsel to do nothing concerning the bank marauders until we had found out what was really in that mound over yonder in the field.

The thing which we all had thought was a pineapple with a message of death for all of us had proved in its mild explosion to be nothing stronger than a Fourth of July roman candle. We had waited in horrified suspense for a further explosion but nothing had come and we had settled down to a feeling of security. My father himself had said that the bomb was either a dud, a threat, or a bit of quilpish humor. And now he wished further investigation of it! I remembered suddenly that he was an old man. Had the events of the night with the accompanying special terrors for him because of me and of my own children so upset him that his usually clear judgment was clouded?

Harry Underwood was the first to answer him.

"I get you, Chief," he said, and I wondered if he was sincere in his statement or was only humoring my father. "And I'm the lad for you. But don't you think we'd better wait for daylight? Look! There's the first of it now."

We followed his eyes toward the east where indeed the blackness was beginning to lift and be displaced by gray.

"Of course. Daylight by all means," my father said and Dicky added:

"That's all right. We'll wait, but I'm in on this."

"Listen, Little One," Mr. Underwood's voice held the badinage which the two old friends so often use in their conversation. "What are your qualifications for this line of work anyway? Please remember that any kind of groundwork, except parachuting from a bombing plane, which simply wasn't done, was out of your line. But if there's any sort of an explosive extant that I haven't seen au naturel, dressed, defunct and cadaver, I like that word, friends, you may serve it in my breakfast cereal this morning."

He was making no idle boast I knew, for he had served magnificently in the ambulance service during the latter part of the war, atoning under an assumed name for the drink-crazed treachery which had almost cost Dicky's life before his old friend had come to his senses, realizing what he was doing, and averted complete disaster by the sacrifice of his own liberty with the prospect of a traitor's death. His escape, his magnificent work during the rest of the war under another name, his pardon by the government for his signal services, and his long years of atonement —these were all as familiar to us as the explosive-strewn battle fields of France were to him.

"That makes no difference," Dicky returned obstinately, but my father held up his hand.

"We have a good half hour for decision," he said. "It won't be broad daylight until then, and we must not wait longer than that because of possible passers-by."

I rose abruptly.

"There'll be time for some coffee, anyway," I said, and Lillian came to my side and slipped her hand through my arm.

"I'll see that she doesn't work too hard, Chief," she said, forestalling the famous objection to any exertion on my part which we knew was on his lips.

"Hurray for the coffee!" Mr. Underwood said, and we hurried into the kitchen forthwith, where we drank plenty of coffee, supplementing the hot drink with bacon, scrambled eggs and toast. When we returned to the veranda and summoned our men, there were still 15 minutes left of the half hour my father had named. "Incredible!" my father said gallantly as he came into the kitchen, where we had spread our viands.

"Nifty speed!" Harry Underwood commented.

"Pipe down, you two," Dicky commanded. "Don't you see them plumping themselves visibly upon your encomiums? They haven't done anything that the average commuter's wife doesn't pull every morning of her life before seven fifty-six."

"But not from scratch, dearie," Lillian retorted.

Dicky grinned widely, and something in his expression told me that he was deliberately getting Lillian and me into one of our old humorous controversies that we might no longer dwell upon the sinister experience through which we had just gone. I resolved to play up and rein in the fears which kept disturbing me.

"We might as well confess," I told Lillian resignedly, then turned to our men.

"We didn't start from scratch, either," I said. "The last thing Katie does each night is to put a teakettle of freshly boiled water upon the pilot light of the gas stove, so that we'll always have hot water for any emergency. I know that it's a crime to use anything except water fresh from the tap and boiled within the quarter hour for coffee or tea, but—this was an emergency."

"We'll forgive you this time," Dicky said with an air of great magnanimity. "And now, Dad, what is it you want us to do about the dud out there?"

It is very wise to have the youngster's clothes all laid out for school the night before so he can make a start as soon as he wakens and not have to wait for some one to find what he is to wear in the morning. It always results in confusion.

If one teaspoonful of cornstarch is added for each cup of sugar chocolate fudge will be smooth and creamy with no beating. A pleasing flavor is added to seasonal fruit sauces or to add a few cropped dates, figs or marshmallows.

Investigators Find Scrub Lady Dead in Room

CHAPTER XXXVIII

I was sorry, and at the same time glad, that I had a good alibi when Peter Thompson forced himself into my headquarters and tried to establish an alibi for me.

Good old Peter!

Due to the fact that I had [illegible] to marry a rich man, he was at [illegible].

"Were you [illegible] last night?" I was asked.

"Of course she was," Peter broke in, giving me a far-from-grateful glance which I understood all right.

"Keep [illegible] at Peter. "Were you [illegible]

"I'm [illegible] over.

"As [illegible] Peter [illegible]

"The [illegible] and a [illegible]

"Take [illegible] and have [illegible] said.

"Don't [illegible] called [illegible]

My [illegible] was a [illegible] to do. He [illegible] I didn't [illegible] editors [illegible] Katherine Mason [illegible] questioned. Peter [illegible] over to [illegible].

During [illegible] was probably [illegible] questions. I didn't answer any of them.

EXPLAINS TO ATTORNEY

Then Mr. Sanders [illegible] greeted me and began [illegible] ing to the officer. H[illegible] came home.

"In the [illegible] with her [illegible] he said.

My [illegible] took [illegible]

"First [illegible] Viola [illegible] once I knew [illegible]

"Mean [illegible] Sanders [illegible]

"Nothing [illegible] thinks I'm [illegible] to hold her.

"Tell me about it [illegible] after you found [illegible].

So I told him [illegible] didn't spare myself. I admitted that I had hoped Matty would marry me. I admitted that I trusted him and believed [illegible] would be quite all right for me [illegible] to slip up to his place for a few minutes and get the [illegible]. I told him about the [illegible] case with my name on it [illegible] gold letters and accused him [illegible] that I had never seen it before and didn't know the contents, but even as I was saying it [illegible] jewels Forrest had promised me. He probably had the case [illegible] up for me.

When I got to the [illegible] of poor old Mr. Hawkins, Mr. Sanders started in amazement.

"What a story!" he ex[illegible]

Synopsis

Katherine Mason, who believes in playing around and having a good time, jilts Fritz Thompson because he is poor. She expects to marry rich Thad Parsons, but Thad marries Arline Sargent instead. Katherine becomes fond of Forrest Malvern, an old friend of Dolly Hawkins, who has disappeared. Thad wants to divorce Arline. Arline offers Kitty a huge sum of money to testify falsely against Thad. At the trial however, Kitty tells the truth and Thad is granted the divorce. He wants to marry Kitty, but she rejects him. Kitty has good times with Forrest. He has a gift for her and she promises to leave a party and go to his apartment at midnight to see it. In the building on her way to see Forrest, an old scrub woman warns Kitty to stay away from him. Kitty goes to the woman's poor quarters to hear her story and is amazed when she proves to be Dolly's mother. The woman says that Dolly ended her life in the river. Kitty does not tell Forrest. Believing that she did, Viola rebukes Kitty. The next day they learn that Forrest had been found shot to death in his apartment. Kitty is taken in police headquarters for questioning. She refuses to talk, awaiting an attorney. Thompson [illegible] to help her.

Now Go On

[illegible]

I [illegible] I protested [illegible] I don't doubt it but [illegible] great human drama [illegible] I want me with my story. [illegible] he said, the old [illegible] woman will vote you. But [illegible] had just gone there [illegible] straight and mind and [illegible] here without seeing him. [illegible] wouldn't have much of a [illegible] with this rainy Dolly [illegible] the lap but who [illegible] and the night [illegible] apartment [illegible] get it. What [illegible] address.

I don't know, I said.

Don't know. My dear [illegible] I know. The [illegible] of such a woman. No one in earth would believe such fantastic story as existing, produced the [illegible] woman.

HUNT SCRUB LADY

[illegible] that I can find the place. Mr. Sanders. It was three blocks east from where Forrest had his home on the roof, a red brick tenement, a cheap place.

[illegible] go to find her. The [illegible] I'll [illegible] cheap red brick tenements, but we have got to find that woman. Mrs. Hawkins [illegible] a great friend of [illegible] police. She [illegible] treated [illegible]

[illegible] a warrant out to talk and I don't know what to do [illegible] a search and [illegible]

Oh, we [illegible] we'll find the woman all right, Miss Mason. [illegible] go and see what [illegible] first and get your [illegible] exactly like the same [illegible] who was with you in the [illegible] car.

The same one.

I [illegible] something as I do [illegible] Don't worry.

Oh, there's another thing [illegible] and unbelievable, a fugitive [illegible] and tried to say that [illegible] was out at his house last night. He made a Peter Thompson [illegible] find out what they are doing [illegible] to him, please.

Mr. Sanders promised and left me.

I began to get nervous and frightened again. What if I never found Mrs. Hawkins? What if she went back to her home upstate?

I might not locate her basement room in the building. It was [illegible] I might have to stay there [illegible] I [illegible] morning when Mrs. Hawkins would be back on her scrubbing job in the foyer.

Mr. Sanders was gone so long that I became more and more frightened. It was getting dark.

Finally he came back and the officer who had tried to make me confess came with him.

"We go and find this scrub woman," the officer said.

"I knew from the way he said [illegible] that he didn't believe it.

"I think I can find the place. It was after midnight when I was there with her. But if I can find it we can wait until [illegible] tomorrow morning, when she goes to work. I said trying to calm my fears.

"Well, go in a little while," Mr. Sanders said. "I want to talk with Miss Mason some more."

FRIENDS FREED

We were left alone.

"Your friend has gone. I took the responsibility of her remaining within reach. She was one mighty mad girl, and Mr. Sanders is [illegible] as he thought of her.

"How about Peter?" I wanted to know.

"Oh, that kindred [illegible] knee, he was [illegible] The [illegible] his address and told him they would call for him when they needed his testimony. He tried to pay [illegible] but offered a promise and a lot of things as security. I didn't see him.

I was glad Peter didn't get into any worse trouble. It was mighty nice of him to make that try to help me, but a fat chance he would have with Luke seeing me come in after.

We finally started out.

The best way will be to go to the place where Forrest lived, I said, and then I'll walk east. I can find the place better if I walk.

They agreed.

When we got there in the taxi that is to the apartment where Forrest had his place on the roof, we left the taxi.

First they went inside with me and made me show them where I met Mrs. Hawkins and how we left through the basement. Then the switchboard man in the inner foyer which I had to pass through to get to the private foyer with Forrest's private elevator identified me. He loved to talk that bird. He rattled on about seeing me come there with others a number of times.

I seen her come in last night right after 12. I never seen her go out. I thought she was staying on the roof with him like on many others do he said.

FIND WOMAN DEAD

The officer didn't say anything at all but he grinned at Mr. Sanders as if he believed that I had stayed in Forrest's place all night.

We began to walk east the three blocks.

As we neared the third corner I began to get excited. I had paid little attention to the place the night before.

That is, I'm pretty sure. I think it was on the [illegible] corner," I said as we were [illegible] the street.

"Was it the same way you did with this [illegible] benevolent [illegible] gentleman," the officer said.

I led them into the hall. It looked like the place, but I couldn't be sure, so many thousands of halls are alike.

I found the door and went down. There was a dim light in the basement and then I saw the door. I remembered it because there was a little ice box outside with a padlock.

"This is it," I said.

The door was locked.

They rapped and called but got no response. The officer walked on to the furnace and came back with some sort of iron. It didn't take him long to pry open the door.

One light was on.

Mrs. Hawkins lay on the floor beside the cot. The officer and Mr. Sanders went over and examined her, knelt down beside her. I began to feel faint for the poor woman's face was enough to tell the story.

She's dead. That makes it tougher than ever for you," the officer said as he turned and stared at me.

DAILY SHORT STORY

Murder Suspect Captured by Cowardly Janitor

Ach! Herman!

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

"JANITOR WANTED"

Herman Schwartz saw the sign in the basement window of the eight story brick apartment block at No. 1280.

"Ach!" said Herman.

He went down the basement steps and entered. He saw a man at work on a door lock.

"Who iss, wants a janitor?" asked Herman.

"How the so-and-so should I know, Buddy? All I want is a drink.

"No?"

"Sure it's so."

The sign say a janitor should be wanted.

"Yeah? Better ask upstairs."

Herman found the stairs and went up. A plump woman with red cheeks and only slightly grayish hair was wiping the paneling in the back lower hall.

"Who are you?" the woman asked, brushing back her hair with a damp hand and breathing heavily. "what do you want? All my apartments are full."

"No? Then it is sure a janitor you iss want."

Herman smiled at her.

"Ach, Deutcher."

"I'm [illegible]

"We speak English here. Are you a janitor?"

"Goot."

"A good one? References?"

Herman produced a paper. She started to read it. She looked at him suspiciously.

"The owner had to do it by himself, such bad times."

The woman knew all about that. Many of her relatives still lived over there.

Then began the talk about Herman's capabilities about the difference in the work. Herman found that this plump, red-cheeked and attractive woman was also German and that she was a widow and that she owned the apartment house. He explained that he had worked in one place during the three years he had been here and that the place was one of several torn down to make a skyscraper.

SATISFACTORY WORKER

Mrs. Bannig's wages were slightly lower than those Herman had been getting, but he hadn't been getting any for some months so he accepted. He would have accepted even less on account of Mrs. Bannig's still keen clear blue eyes and her pretty red cheeks.

Herman Schultz was delighted with the little three-room apartment in the basement that was to be his home. He was delighted that Mrs. Bannig permitted him to bring Fritz along. Fritz sat his dog, not a dachshound, but a [illegible] brown spaniel.

His work was satisfactory, more satisfactory than Mrs. Bannig would permit herself to admit to him although she was always kind and pleasant to him. Mrs. Banning was clever and knew many things among them that if you praise these people too much they at once demand more money.

Herman was almost happy.

One thing made him unhappy, his knowledge that he was a timid sort of a soul despite his bulk and his military mustache. Being timid, he lacked the courage to show his growing affections for Mrs. Bannig.

He would talk to Fritz about it in the sanctuary of his little basement apartment.

"Yes, Fritz, she is a fine woman," he would say, "a good strong and handsome woman. If she but worked here I might perhaps tell her we should marry and that is so, Fritz."

AWARE OF TIMIDNESS

The dog would wag his tail and regard Herman with sympathetic eyes.

But this Frieda Bannig, a good name, Frieda, she is so rich. If I should go once to her and tell her we should marry, what then? Eh, Fritz?"

The dog would continue to be sympathetic, but not helpful in this situation.

You know, Fritz, she would laugh on me, she would say to me to stop such talk, she would say it was because she had a big house like this and money. Ach."

Then Herman would fill his pipe and sit and think and be unhappy over his timidness and his real affection for Mrs. Bannig.

There were occasions, too, when Herman's natural timidness became apparent to Mrs. Bannig.

She did not like timid men. She liked brave men. Her husband had been a brave man. Mrs. Bannig could not know that the hardships of the war, wounds, gas attacks and brutal Hauptmann Brolitz had all helped to make him timid.

There was the time when a man had rushed into his little basement apartment at night and ordered him to hide him. Herman had not dared to refuse.

The police came. Herman lied. He said he had seen no man. He went with the cops up through the place looking for this man who had just held up a [illegible] store and shot down the clerk.

The crook got away while they were searching and took Herman's silver watch.

Answering Mrs. Bannig's suspicious questions about this later Herman had said: "If I had seen this crook, Ach, I would have held him."

"Yes, you would," Mrs. Bannig replied, "and be afraid to hold your shadow."

What hurt about this was that it was true.

Herman would have day dreams about this. Day dreams in which he would tell himself that he had single-handed unarmed this murderous bandit held him for the police and won a reward of a thousand dollars.

Included in these day dreams would be imaginings of making a present of a handsome diamond to Mrs. Bannig from the reward money and having her embrace him and call him her hero.

He would imagine having her say: "Ach, Herman, you are my hero!"

Always he would reply boldly: "Ach, Frieda, it is because I love you." Then he would embrace her.

Then he would sigh heavily, realizing how futile such wishes were.

There was the night when Mrs. Bannig telephoned down to him. It was late then.

"Go quick up to Mrs. Temple's apartment, 4-B, she says a burglar is coming up her fire escape," Mrs. Bannig ordered.

Herman was trembling as he got into his clothes. He hurried because he was more afraid of Mrs. Bannig than of any burglar, and he was mortally afraid of burglars.

Mrs. Temple was in the hall in a gaudy kimono.

Mrs. Bannig was just coming down the hall.

Herman had to go inside. There certainly was a noise at the window. He crept forward. The two women stood at the door.

"Hold him!" Mrs. Bannig hissed.

Herman peered out, trembling all over.

SEARCH FOR BANDIT

It was a rat that had knocked over some articles set out against the law, on the fire escape.

"A rat only," shouted Herman, perspiring with relief.

"Ach, you tremble!" Mrs. Bannig said, with disgust, as she came in.

"I hurried and was out of breath," Herman murmured, but he went sadly back to his apartment, knowing that Mrs. Bannig thought less than ever of him.

The night that Baby-face Cronley escaped over the roof tops when 30 cops surrounded his place after he had killed a patrolman and mortally wounded another, was excitable, indeed, in the vicinity of Mrs. Bannig's apartment. Rumor had it that Cronley was hiding here and there, in this place and in that. No one was sure about anything except that Cronley was at large, being hunted by a small army of nervous cops with nervous trigger fingers and that bullets might find unintentional targets.

Herman tried to go about calmly but he was far from being calm.

Herman, you take you as iron bar," Mrs. Banning ordered, and if that murderer feller tries to come in here you break his head in. If you don't them cops will chase him in and we will all be shot up."

Yes, of course," Herman said.

He was glad the light was dim for he knew by the awful sensation down in his stomach that he was pale as death.

Herman tip-toed about down in the basement on unnecessary errands going up to guard the door only occasionally and then rushing back.

He came down to his apartment trembling more than ever. He needed a little stimulant and he had some in his cupboard. He went in and snapped on the light.

He stood facing a man who was pointing two guns at him.

"Open your so-and-so trap and I'll plug you, you never seen me in here, get that?" the man said.

Herman nodded. He couldn't speak.

QUESTIONED BY POLICE

The man stepped back a pace and stepped on Fritz. Fritz emitted a painful yelp. The man turned and kicked the dog. Almost before his kick was finished the iron bar came down on the man's head and he dropped.

Herman stood trembling. The man stirred. Herman got both of the man's guns and started binding him with clothesline, stopping to comfort poor frightened Fritz.

Then Herman went up to find the police.

"Why don't you stay here, you coward?" Mrs. Bannig demanded. She had come down to see if Herman was watching.

I got him and dragged him down and tied him up on not to make a big fuss," he said. He went out and found a policeman, who insisted on getting three more before they went down.

There was Baby-face Cronley.

He come in the door and I socked him and we had some fight until I got his guns, then I drag him down here to get a clothesline to tie him," Herman explained.

Reporters flocked, high police officials questioned, and after all was quiet, Mrs. Bannig went to Herman.

"Ach, Herman, and I called you a coward—you are my hero!" she said.

"If then I am your hero, you then are my sweetheart, ja?"

"Ja," answered the widow Bannig.

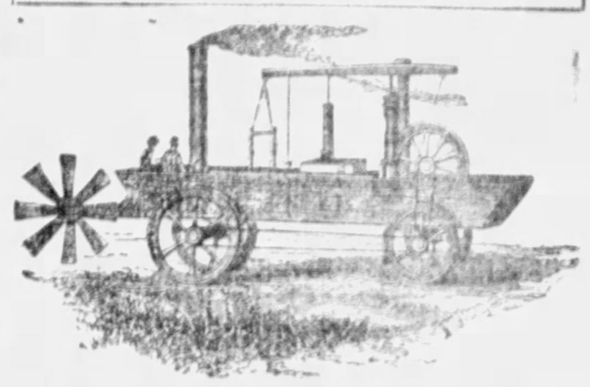
Mr. Frisby Offers Himself for Experiment



Mr. Frisby takes pleasure in announcing that he is again a father—the father of a new and novel idea in the way of heavier-than-air locomotion. Mr. Frisby has perfected what he calls the Noble Experiment Safety First Ground Gripper Dirigible, in which he will make a cross-country flight to prove that alcohol deadens the brain and makes a beast of man. Mr. Frisby's "Auto-Bird," as he sometimes refers to it, is propelled by steam generated in connection with a giant copper still, to show farmers how to get 12 gallons to the acre from their corn. Mr. Frisby will then consume the hateful beverage before the very eyes of his admirers, submit to questions concerning the Eastern theory back like a dog, and make noises imitating the feasts of the forest.

BE A PITTSBURGH BOOSTER
To Your Friends in Other Cities

He Needs a Stout Club

The President and the Federal Government have power in themselves and power to co-operate with State governments to end lawlessness in the United States and to stop this carnival of racketeering and gang murder. Only through the united action of all official agencies will the monster of the underworld be routed.

Amateur Astronomers

Pittsburgh Is Entertaining a Notable Convention.—Brief Comment on Local News

Pittsburgh is entertaining today and tomorrow one of the most notable of the many conventions booked for the city this year—the first annual assembly of amateur astronomers and telescope makers of the Middle Atlantic States. The convention is small in numbers, but glorious and impressive in the ideals and activities of its members.

Astronomy is a fascinating study, but not many choose to pursue it as a hobby. The amateur astronomers meeting here are mostly busy people with little leisure for the study except in the evenings and on holidays. That is why they chose Saturday and Sunday for their convention. And that, also, is one reason why their accomplishments are so impressive.

Many of those attending the convention have made their own telescopes, make them of sufficient power to reveal stars of the twelfth or thirteenth magnitude, craters of the moon not more than two or three miles across, and some of the remote nebulae. Modestly belittling their achievements, these amateurs say that "anybody can make a telescope capable of showing Saturn's rings and Jupiter's moons."

*It is not at all inappropriate that the amateur as*tronomers should hold sessions on Sunday for the examination of astronomical instruments and observation of the heavenly bodies. There is a close relationship between astronomy and religious worship, for "the heavens declare the glory of God, and the firmament showeth His handiwork."

*The amateur astronomers' program calls for lay*ing a wreath on a monument to John S. Brashear. What an inspiration this great Pennsylvania astronomer's life has been! Though he is dead, he yet liveth in the influence that his life and works continue to exercise on persons like these amateur telescope makers. They seek to follow in his footsteps.

*A quality conspicuous in our most successful poli*ticians is their sense of humor. None of them is exempt from a proclivity to crack jokes. No doubt it has something to do with their ability to win votes. Here is Major Kline, for instance, telling the 80th Division Veterans' Association that "we always observe the Volstead Act in this community."

*There is a widespread belief that when any consid*erable number of World War veterans get together in a reunion infractions of the Volstead Act are to be expected. There has been no evidence in the 80th Division convention to support this notion. The conduct of the Blue Ridgers has been impeccable. Their coming to Pittsburgh is always a welcome event.

*We salute the 80th Division men on their fine com*pliment to the War Mothers. The parade in honor of the women is a beautiful gesture of honor and admiration. It is not to be forgotten that many of these mothers suffered more through anxiety than their coarser-fibered sons. Yet their patriotism was inflexible.

Pittsburghers have been accustomed for so many years to regard the proposed Beaver and Mahoning River route as the one best adapted for the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal that they have perhaps not given proper attention to the claims presented for other routes. The plea of I. H. Gavin, of Oil City, for the Allegheny River route at least deserves consideration.

*Mr. Gavin, executive secretary of the Upper Alle*gheny River Improvement Association, complains that although he was appointed by Gov. Pinchot a member of the Lake Erie and Ohio River Canal Board, the board and its chairman, Alexander Dann, have snubbed him by never asking him to attend a meeting. This seems to call for an explanation by Mr. Dann.

Mr. Gavin contends that the Allegheny River route would cost far less than the Beaver-Mahoning route. He says further that the Beaver-Mahoning route would give Youngstown a great advantage over Pittsburgh in the competition for steel business. As against this, however, there is the certainty that the Beaver-Mahoning route would furnish far greater tonnage, at least at the outset than the Allegheny route.

We would like to see further discussion of ex-Mayor William A. Magee's suggestion that instead of waiting for the Federal Government to build the Lake Erie and Ohio River canal, Pittsburgh, Wheeling, Youngstown and other interested municipalities join forces and finance the project themselves through bond issues. This would be a splendid time for going ahead, as interest rates on municipal borrowings probably were never lower.

Senator James J. Davis' indictment in his radio address here Thursday night of the manner in which juvenile prisoners are treated in Federal penitentiaries was a stirring plea for a more humane system. There is encouragement for the hope that a change will be made in the fact that so vigorous a fighter as Senator Davis has taken up the cudgel against this shameful brutality.

Another warm Sunday is in prospect. It will be a good day on which to refrain from violent exercise. A pleasant way in which to forget the heat is by reading the Sunday Sun-Telegraph. If even reading is tiresome, enjoy the pictures in the Gravure Section. Tomorrow's issue will contain some beautiful work in colors, as well as the prize winning pictures in the amateur photograph contest.

The hot weather has resulted in what is probably the most extensive use of bathing places in the history of this region. It is gratifying to learn that Director of Public Works Edward G. Lang is going ahead with plans for night bathing at the new Highland Park pool. All the municipal pools should be opened at night if consistent with safety.

The explosion at Blythedale yesterday in which three persons were injured and which is believed to have been caused by a bomb is another challenge to the ability of the county detectives. The explosion at Coverdale last Monday remains unsolved. Are all of the numerous recent bomb outrages to go unpunished?

Defeat of Crime Our Paramount Interest

By BAINBRIDGE COLBY

WHERE have our civic energies departed?

Where are those things we used to describe as the public conscience and community self-respect?

Crime goes marching on. New areas are day by day brought under submission to it. It is no longer an urban evil afflicting only our great cities. The wooded quiet of such regions as the Catskill Mountains, and the peaceful tranquility of our rural counties have been invaded by the forces of organized crime, not as places of hiding and retreat, but as new fields of operation.

Mr. Colby

And yet there is no sign of any stirring, as you would expect in a people such as Americans have always regarded themselves—springs from resistance to oppression, devoted to order, convinced that observance of the law lies at the root of their liberties, eager to defend the right, and determined to punish assaults upon their institutions.

THE true importance of any community depends upon the number of intelligent men, with courage and independence, which it contains. Emporia, Kan., with William Allen White in it, is a more important community to this country than some of the cities which number their people by the million. IT IS SPIRIT, NOT SIZE, THAT COUNTS.

Is our public spirit quenched? Our press is aflame with editorials calling upon our citizens to rouse themselves from their lethargy, to join together in rescuing our communities from domination by criminals.

The space devoted to news is largely taken up with accounts of outrages, calculated to stir the dead and make even the silence of the deep vocal.

And yet we go our way—concentrate upon our little runways, studying the market reports, the baseball scores, the comic strips and a host of petty personal interests, that make up our little round.

THERE was a time in recent memory when things were not so. In moments of great emergency we used to meet in mass meetings to hear fearless and able men discuss its causes, nail responsibility where it belonged, propose measures of correction and redress.

Our communities had voice and they used it. They spoke with authority. Committees of public spirited men sprang up spontaneously. It was an honor to belong to them. The distinction which came from such public service was coveted and generously striven for by men of education and standing.

The criminal alliance between the politicians and the public authorities which existed in New York in the time of Tweed was broken up by the famous Committee of Seventy. The rascals who fancied themselves above the law were driven into exile or prison. BETTER TIMES FOLLOWED.

TODAY the Wickersham Commission, too much derided and too little appreciated for the value of its work, has certified to us that there is an OPEN WORKING ALLIANCE BETWEEN THE POLITICIANS, THE CRIMINALS AND THE POLICE—the politicians deriving tribute from crime on a scale which has no precedent; in return, exercising a restraining influence upon the police, which only the politician can exert, with the result that crime on a national scale is rampant—unpunished and unafraid.

What are we going to do about this report?

HAVE THE FOUNTAINS OF CIVIC VIRTUE AND CIVIC ENERGY DRIED UP?

Is the contempt which the gangster displays towards society, a true and just appraisal of our quality as a people?

It would seem that the public mind has been led away from the questions that should engage it, and that its powers have been scattered in vain quests and investigations, possessing only remote interests and little relations to our needs.

WITH unpunished murders at our doorstep we prate about peace in the Balkans, the balance of power in the Orient, the appeasement of Latin American antipathy toward us, the horizontal reduction of world tariffs, and a thousand and one subjects, about which attractive little compositions are written and spoken, and learned disquisitions published, but which do not serve our times.

Relatively to the throbbing question as to whether we ourselves are capable of self government, whether we are capable of maintaining a self-respecting system of national, state and local government within our domestic borders; whether in our own national life, murder is or is not a punishable crime—these other topics, so enticing to the culture clubs and the luncheon discussions of Rotary and Kiwanis, seem painfully empty and distant.

THE institutes for politics and for the discussion of various moot problems in the fields of administrative and sociological reform, are out of step with the needs of the hour.

They are diverting public attention from real questions to unreal questions.

They remind me of a passage in one of the plays of Aristophanes, which lingers in my schoolday memories. This great dramatic satirist, writing centuries before the Christian era, had an approach to life that was essentially modern.

He describes a journey along a highway with a companion, whose attention he calls to a group of people on a nearby hillside.

"What may those people be doing," said he to his companion, "yonder on the rising knoll, with their eyes glued to the earth and their rumps pointing heavenward!"

"Why, that," said his companion, "is the 'thinking shop.' Those people, whom you observe, with their eyes to the ground, are endeavoring to penetrate the secrets that are locked up in the bowels of the earth, while at the same time, with their ranging rumps, they are doing likewise with regard to the secrets of the heavens."

THERE should be no room at round table conferences, or at any other conferences, for subjects which, relatively to the crowding and insistent problems of our hourly life, are colorless, unsubstantial and empty.

HOW DO WE PROPOSE TO BREAK UP THE ALLIANCE BETWEEN THE CRIMINAL AND THE POLITICIAN, AND THE RESULTANT INDUSTRY OF UNPUNISHED AND UNPUNISHABLE CRIME?

Until we succeed in this, we have no right to open our mouths in discussion of conditions or problems that lie beyond our borders.

Until this question is answered, there are no other questions which should be permitted to distract our attention.

Marry-Go-Round

Matrimania

[illegible]

Women never will give up the idea that they can make something out of nothing, as long as a girl will marry a mental blank and a moral washout in the fond hope that she can transform him into a responsible husband.

* * *

An ideal husband is the one who never forgets your birthday and never remembers your age.

* * *

A brand new car and a new bride get a lot of attention, and the tenderest care, but after a while the average man can just park them anywhere and forget them.

* * *

The difference between the old-fashioned girl and the modern girl is merely a matter of phraseology. When a man kissed the old-fashioned girl she said, "Oh, Stop!" But now, while the modern girl says, "Oh, don't, please!"

A wife who is loyal enough to laugh heartily at her husband's favorite after-dinner story, and then beg him to tell that other good one, will never have to worry about a little thing like getting fat or losing her complexion.

* * *

A man could never sit all through the processes of a permanent wave without trying to find out the scientific reasons for the permanence. But a woman can go under the surgeon's knife and never be quite sure what he cut out or put in the pain stops. Yet a woman is called the inquisitive sex.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

Decision

My feet are on the upward trail
Toward the sunlit hills again.
I have left the region of valley mist
And the belt of the blinding rain.

Oh, there were days when I stumbled on
Through a land all veiled and drear
But now I am climbing up once more
Into realms where the air is clear.

Once more I move where the air is clear
And the winds are cool and sweet
For I know how my course is charted now
And I see the path for my feet.

I shall grope no more through the valleys dim
A prey to the tricks of the base
For I will keep on the upward trail
And the peace of the sunlit pass

FRANCE DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

PARIS, Aug. 8.—In knocking [illegible] Paris today I am [illegible] the customary reaction [illegible] at once the most irritating and bewitching city on earth. I am always delighted I am going to get away and in a little while leaping to return.

I no longer think of Paris as Paris. Instead I think of the fascinating and menacing wretchedness that murders behind its glitter. The sparkling Paris of the Rue de la Paix and Champs Elysees is a first impression. After a while one prefers the Paris of tatters and utter squalor.

For behind imposing ramparts along avenues and boulevards is that great network of twisting, tiny streets, shabby alleys and [illegible]. And here one discovers that the Paris of light, music and cafes is like the gleaming gem of the temptress.

Back of a curtain of grands magasins and petit boutiques Paris hides its heartbreak. More than on any other trip this time I mingled among such shadows. I loitered along the quays dipped down among the Seine sleepers who eddy like human driftwood under the spanning bridges.

I cherish the Paris of the sewers of fetidity and forgotten byways of ancient courtyards illuminated by the ghastly glitter of clear white gas of the depraved Rue de Lappe where women dance with women and men dance with men to the accordions of the bals de musee.

It is all grim terrible these hate-away nights cluttered with misshapen mankind stooped mustached crones smelly drinking dives mangy dogs diseased and cast-off cocottes lame and blind beggars rows of shawled furtive figures standing dumbly in mysterious hallways.

This is the quaint Paris that hugs closely the fashionable angle of the motor roar and the astonishing ateliers. It is the topsy-turvy Paris of bijou bars cozy comptoirs — the garishly fronted box-like charcuteries boulangeries and tiendureries. It is a Paris that should shock civilization.

* * *

Last night we dined at Pharamond, a sawdust-sprinkled restaurant back of the markets and famed for its tripe which I was told afterward was the lining of an ox's stomach. It was served bubbling with fat on charcoal heaters along with champagne-like but kickless Normandy cider. I ordered three extra bottles of cider just to see the wine waiter back down the circular cork-screw staircase to the cellar to fetch it. He was so fat and tubby that he had slowly to squeeze his way and I had the comical notion he might get stuck. But he always made the grade.

We were the only customers at Pharamond and ordered for dessert from the smudgy menu fraises avec sour cream. The order set off a commotion in the kitchen. The proprietor left the cashier's cage and there was an electric jabber of excitedly shrill voices. Finally the proprietor romped through the place hatless and out the door. In 10 minutes he came dashing back in a taxi bearing aloft two fresh boxes of strawberries and the day was saved. Vive la France!

In the Seine off Villennes is a nudist cult like those so innumerable in Germany. Yet it holds no attraction for Parisian sightseers. They are so accustomed to nudism in their theatrical exhibits that the rubber-neck boat making two trips daily has quit. Also the shameless exhibit of feminine flesh in the Rue Blondell Cafe has lost its lure and it is closing.

* * *

I sought to exit laughingly from my hotel this evening but found the usual lineup from valet de chambre with his bed-ticking vest to the royal palandrum with wisp of imperial and braided coat. I tried to outbow them and went along giggling and trilling "Au revoir, messieurs" while Billy sniffed their trouser legs. They returned the bows but let me do the giggling. I expect to go to another hotel the next time anyway.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Tired? Sick of cities?
Come—

Through the meadow a
Sun-bleached grass
Burns brilliant
As blown glass
Gilded stem and silver blade
In tangled mass
Mats of blossom
Hides weeds.
Lazy bugs like round red beads
Burrowing in pansy seeds
Fairy spiders
Gray and brown
Spinning webs
On thistledown
Pansy-painted butterflies
In a velvet flight
Mosquito-winged dragonflies
Bodies jacket bright

In the shadow of the grass
Other worlds go on
Secret runways twist and pass
In between the feet
Here a big fat gopher sits
Blinking in his hole
Watching neighbor folk go by Squirrel and mouse and mole

Over all
A blazing rain of light
White light flashing
Piercing crashing
From the sky's white bowl

Then, as though you stepped
Past a sun-drenched sill
Into some great room
Dark and cool and still Suddenly you are
In among the pines
In the tall blue spacious Silence of the pines

Far upon the
The pines rise through the silence
Silence like water
Dark-ing and cool—
Fill upon the
The pines rest in the silence
Like swimmers that drift
On a dim midnight pool
Gray furrowed trunks—
The gum drips in bubbles
Bright as wet amber
Where light falls aslant
Straight furrowed trunks
The base drowned in shadow
Their heads lost in pillows
Of pea-green smoke

Framed in the smoke
Plaques of sky
Blue as turquoise

Down through the darkness
The sun casts its shuttle
Weaving gold strands
Through the indigo gloom
Spilling bright patches
Upon the bronze carpet
Bright rose-gold patches
On carpets of needles
Needles smooth silent
As slivers of light
Underneath—dust
Years of life ground to powder
Still holding the magic
Of all those lost springs
Fragrance of violet
Flavor of acorn
Honey and pollen
And briar rose sweet
Veil from a mushroom
And speckled owl feather
And egg and bat bone
And scorpion meat
Underneath, dust
The woods' deepest magic
Now piled in gray hush
For your hot tired feet

The sounds die away
All the thought sounds
The fear sounds
Alone with the great pines
You rest and grow still

One hour—a cone falls
With soft lazy clatter.
Two hours—a rabbit
Lopes down the long trail.
Three hours—above you
The sky plaques are darkening
The glittering turquoise
Has deepened to mauve
And now a breeze stirs
Like the breath of one waking
As though earth itself
Waked and stretched in the cool
As ghostly as twilight
A pale deer comes slipping
Pressed close to her flank
There's a slim dappled fawn
From far off a bird calls
The night thrush is singing
Still farther a star blooms
Like one small white flower
The dark tide is rising
The trees forms dissolving
The long day is ending
Rest, dear, it is night
